New York City on brink of collapse

NEW YORK (AP) — Rebuffed by the President in their last-minute appeals for federal help, state and city officials searched frantically today for some other way to pull New York City back from the brink of financial collapse.

President Ford's press secretary said in Washington that Ford would "not take action to prevent a New York City default. Spokesman Ron Nessen added that none of the President's chief advisers were trying to persuade him to modify his long-standing opposition to federal aid for the city.

Mayor Abraham Beame had said he had an "open line" to the White House, but Nessen said the White House meetings were being held "purely to keep up with a rapid, fluid and changing situation" — not to canvass possible solutions.

Rep. Peter Peyser, a Republican congressman from suburban Westchester, said he telephoned from New York to Treasury Secretary William Simon and asked that the federal government advance the city $150 million in federal payments due later.

He said Simon consulted with Ford and "very plainly stated to me that the federal government would take no action today in the immediate crisis facing the city."

Efforts by the city to avoid default on its financial obligations by a 3 p.m. deadline, the closing hour of the city's major banks, focused on shoring up a multimillion-dollar package of pension funds to meet $453 million in debt obligations due today.

The city's 11 major banks reaffirmed a previous agreement not to press for redemption of another $59 million in city notes due today. Fiscal experts said that without the banks' agreement, the city would have needed that much more to avoid default.

At the city controller's office, a spokesman said holders of $250 million in notes had already filed for redemption and that several firms, mostly brokers, showed up today with about $30 million more in notes. He said they were given receipts saying they would be exchanged for cash at 2 p.m. — if the cash or its equivalent is available.

In Albany, the Court of Appeals, the state's highest, cleared the way for the state comptroller to use state police pension funds to raise $250 million for the cash-drained city.

But a hitch developed in New York City when the United Federation of Teachers continued to refuse to commit $150 million in its retirement funds toward a complex $2.3 billion bailout plan that the state government had put together a month ago to keep New York solvent through November.

Albert Shanker, president of the teachers' union, met with Beame, but the nature of the discussions was not disclosed. Shanker said, however, that he had not changed his position on the use of teacher pension funds.

Ford has expressed strong opposition to any federal aid to rescue the city, and a White House spokesman said his position had not changed. "This does not imply a change in policy in any way," the spokesman said.

Youth tries to escape, leads deputy on chase

BLOOMFIELD — An Ohio youth charged with breaking and entering led Stoddard County Deputy Sheriff Jim Ross on a not-so-merry chase Thursday morning when he tried to escape while being brought from the county jail to the magistrate courtroom.

Ross said James Wells, 17, of Dayton, Ohio, was being taken to appear before Judge Jimmie Trammell in Magistrate Court on a charge of breaking and entering the Jehovah's Witness Hall in Dexter Saturday night.

When they reached the corner of the courthouse, Wells took off running. Ross said Wells was not handcuffed at the time.

"He decided to run -- he thought he was a speed demon," Ross commented later.

Ross gave chase and Sheriff Ralph Mouser, who was in the magistrate courtroom which is in a building separate from the courthouse, happened to look out the door and see Wells running by.

"He had his head thrown back and was going wide open when he came by the courthouse door," remarked Mouser, who rushed from the building to aid Ross.

"It looked like he was going to tear the door down trying to get out," Watonna Hester, magistrate clerk, said of Mouser's hurried exit from the building.

Ross was chasing Wells north on Prairie Street – the city's main street. Mouser attempted to circle around to a point where he could head off Wells, but later said "I was too far behind to even be counted. He never came by me."

Ross chased the man about a block and a half to a spot behind Bank of Bloomfield, where Wells tripped and got behind a parked car. Ross got on the other side of a car.

The deputy pulled his pistol and called out for help to a citizen driving by in a truck.

The citizen got out of the truck and surrounded Wells by approaching him from the opposite side of the car from the deputy. Wells then surrendered.

He was then made to stand against the car and was handcuffed and brought back to the courtroom.

Ross said he did not have an opportunity to learn the identity of the man who helped him, or to even thank him for his help.

During the following court proceedings, Judge Trammell appointed an attorney to represent Wells and ordered him to return to court on Oct. 23. He then was returned to the county jail.

Ross said Wells told him he ran because he really thought he could get away.

Ross tripped once during the chase, but when asked would supply no details.

The charge against Wells stemmed from a Saturday night incident in which he was among a group of persons in a truck being chased by Dexter police.

Police reported that several of those in the truck were apprehended but later released. Wells and a juvenile girl

Charleston man shot, killed by police officer

CHARLESTON — Ronnie Clyde Watson, 22, was shot and killed by a police officer about 12:30 a.m. today in the driveway of his home.

Police Chief Bob Ritchey said officer Charles Martin, 33, saw Watson's pickup truck run a stop sign at the intersection of Cleveland and Elm streets and followed the truck to 312 Cleveland St., where it pulled into a driveway.

As Martin approached the truck, asking Watson why he had run the stop sign, Watson reportedly got out of the truck using profanity, cursed the officer, and struck him in the face.

Ritchey said Martin reported that he assumed Watson had struck him with his fist since he did n ot observe a weapon in the dark.

According to Ritchey, Martin was stunned by the blow and was stumbling backward, falling to the ground, when Watson came at him again.

The officer pulled his service revolver and fired one shot, which struck Watson in the left side of the chest. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle, who has scheduled an inquest at 4 p.m. today.

Martin, a 13-month veteran of the Charleston police department, was suspended from duty as normal procedure by Ritchey until a full investigation is completed. Martin completed St. Louis Police acadmey and served on St. Louis Police Department a year before moving to Charleston.

Ritchey, who described Martin as a good officer who remained calm and collected and in control of the situation, said the officer's teeth went through his lip and his face was bruised, apparently from the blow. He was treated in a local physician's office.

Watson was born Sept. 26, 1953 in Charleston where he had lived most of his life. He was employed as a brick mason by Forrest Chandler.

On March 6, 1971 he married Beverly Kay Passley, who survives.

Other survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Watson of Chareston; one daughter, Melissa Kay Watson of the home; one sister, Sheila Kay Watson of Charleston; and maternal grandparents, John E. Reeves of Poplar Bluff and Myrtle B. Reeves of Charleston.

Friends may call tonight at McMikle Funeral Home whre services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Burial will follow in IOOF Cemetery.

CB recovered; 2 men charged

A citizens band radio, stolen Thursday from a truck parked at Potlatch Forests Inc., Highway 62 East, has been recovered, police said today.

The radio was found along Highway 62 East in Miner, where it had apparently been thrown from a car. Two men, who were stopped in Miner by police just after the theft, have been charged with stealing over $50.

Police identified the men as Larry James Marshall, 138 Reuben St., and Roosevelt Jones, 1402 Osage St.

The radio belonged to Jerry Patterson, a Potlatch employe.

The two men were allegedly seen leaving the parking lot about 4:30 a.m. by off-duty police officer Gary Brown.

Brown said he saw one of the men run to a moving car, throw something in the front seat and then the car drove away with its lights off.

When police stopped the car a few minutes later, the radio was not found, although police found four screws allegedly from the radio and a bag of what may be marijuana.

Bond urges program of self-help

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — All levels of government should place a new emphasis on programs which "help senior citizens help themselves," Gov. Christopher S. Bond said Wednesday in remarks to the Missouri Advisory Council on Aging.

"We should provide our senior citizens with the opportunity—meaning the tools and mobility—to realize their full potential as happy and productive citizens," Bond said.

He added that the elderly should be involved actively in the programs which affect them, and he cited the state's volunteer recruitment drive as a place for such involvement.

The volunteer program, headed by Lt. Gov. William Phelps, allows any interested person to volunteer his or her services to the state.

Caruthersville pair sought

NEVADA, Mo. (AP) — A southeast Missouri man and his 14-year-old nephew were sought today for a series of robberies, auto thefts and two rapes which began in their home neighborhood and ranged across southern Missouri to Sedan in the southeast corner of Kansas,

Warrants against Virgil Allen Tanner, 23, Caruthersville, Mo., and his nephew had been issued at Caruthersville, Sedan and Nevada.

They disappeared about 2 p. m. Thursday after leaving James Robb, 47, tied up at his farmhouse about 17 miles southeast of Nevada.

They are charged at Nevada with raping Robb's two daughters and stealing a neighbor's brown 1969 Chevrolet sedan, the car in which they apparently fled.

Warrants issued at Caruthersville charge them with stealing more than $500 Monday morning from Gene Johnson in an armed holdup at his rural grocery store in the little Bootheel town of Braggadocio.

They also are charged with stealing a car Wednesday at Sedan, which is just above the Oklahoma line and about 90 miles west of the point where Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma adjoin near Joplin, Mo.

The Missouri Highway Patrol quoted Robb as saying he was taken prisoner about noon Wednesday when he found two men in a a vacant farmhouse was was painting near his home. It is near the little Missouri town of Montevallo, about 60 miles northeast of Joplin.

Robb was quoted as saying the two men took him to his home, where he and two of his daughters were held hostage until a third daughter and a teen-age neighbor girl arrived at the Robb place shortly before noon Thursday.

The fugitives fled after putting Robb and the four girls in the trunks of Robb's car and another reported stolen at Sedan.

At Caruthersville, Sheriff Thad O. Shelly identified Tanner as being on parole from Florida. The sheriff said Tan-

Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, Missouri commissioner of education, will be the featured speaker Sunday at a Sikeston Public Schools Bicentennial rally scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. in Malone Park.

Mallory will speak on the topic, "We've Come a Long Way, America!"

After receiving his doctorate degree in 1959 from University of Missouri, Mallory served as assistant superintendent of the Parkway School District in St. Louis from 1959 to 1964 and as president of Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield from 1964-1970. On Jan. 1, 1971, he was named commissioner of elementary and secondary education for the state.

Cason says

Charisma not really vital

State Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, is shrugging aside remarks by a state party leader that he lacks the charisma necessary to attract voters in his drive for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

"I put on a clean shirt this morning, I shined my shoes, had my suit pressed, brushed my teeth; and, you know, my wife said I looked pretty good when I left the house," Cason told Scott County Young Democrats this morning at the El Capri Restaurant.

"We've got a governor with charisma," Cason said. "If our party is going to offer a choice, maybe instead of offering somebody with just charisma, maybe we ought to have somebody with capability, with courage and with concern for the people of this state."

Caseon added that former President Harry Truman did not have charisma, but "Harry did pretty good."

The original remark about his lack of charisma came from state party chairman James Spain of Bloomfield.

In an interview Thursday afternoon, Cason said it was time to elect a governor who knows what it is like to work for a living. He was apparently referring to Gov. Christopher S. Bond's wealthy background.

Cason said he is confident of winning the Democratic nomination and the gubernatorial race.

The state of the economy will give Democratic candidates a boost, he said. He pointed out that Bond ran well behind former President Richard Nixon in the number of votes each received in the 1972 election. Bond has lost ground since, Cason asserted.

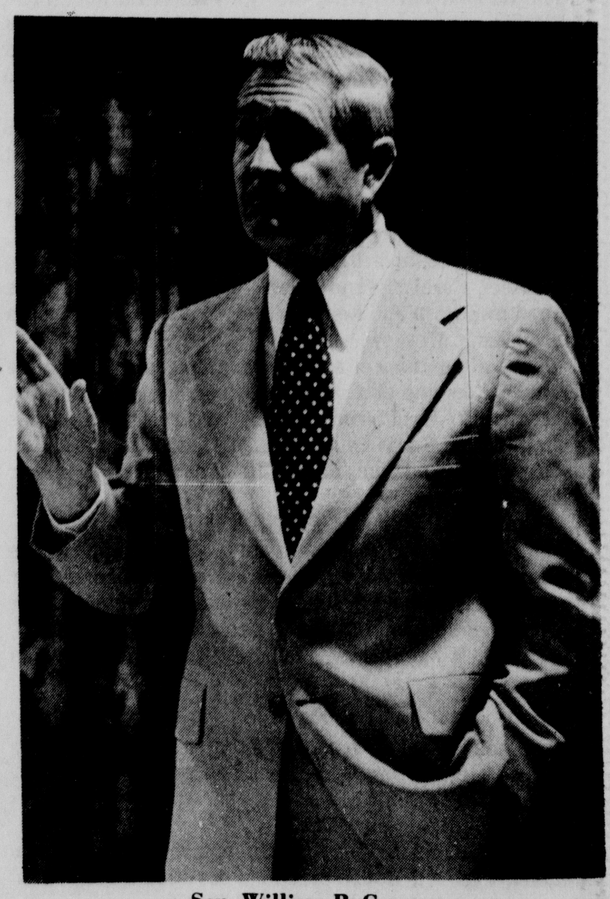

Bond lacks leadership, Cason said, adding that the governor does not get involved in the legislative process. If a bill passes that he likes, he signs it, Cason said. If it does not pass, he accuses the Legislature of not doing its job.

Although Bond has not filed for re-election, Cason said he believes the incumbent governor will be his opponent in 1976. What might make him change his mind, Cason said, would be for Atty. Gen. John Danforth to decide not to run for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being relinquished by Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington, who is retiring at the end of his current term.

Cason said he thinks Bond would like to go to Washington.

Cason graduated from the University of Missouri with a degree in accounting and then attended the University's law school from which he graduated in 1951.

He was elected prosecuting attorney of Henry County in 1952. He went to the State Senate in 1960 and was named majority floor leader in 1971 and 1972. He was elected president pro tem of the Senate for the 1973 and 1975 General Assemblies.

Consumers Union has been gradually transformed, under the directorship of Betty Furness, Herbert Denenberg, and Ralph Nader, from a reliable source of product information into an oracle for promoting a specific view of what is good for consumers, CU lawyers have 13 legal battles in process, and the pages of Consumer Reports are increasingly filled with opinionated articles on such subjects as gasoline rationing and national health insurance. The magazine also serves as a vehicle for distributing controversial books, such as Barry Commoner's Closing Circle and Ralph Nader's book on pensions. "We would be an incomplete consumer organization," says CU Director Rhoda Karpatkin, "if we didn' provide a voice for consumers." But Consumers Union can only claim to provide a voice for some portion of its readers, not for all consumers, and the only reader control over that voice is the right to pick seven of the twenty directors annually from a preselected list of 13 names.

All of this activism has not been without cost. The price of a subscription rose by a whopping 37.5 per cent last year, readership dropped by more than 20,000, and the organization's budget deficit is pushing $1.4 million. A new computerized subscription processing system has proved to be a lemon, and Consumer Reports has had to apologize to its remaining readers for not doing a better job of minding its own business. Now Ralph Nader has decided to quit the organization and has announced that he can better use the time he has been spending on CU -- ten days a year.

Just think: a $1.4 million deficit and a loss of 200,000 readers on only ten days a year.

WHERE THERE'S NO WILL, THERE'S NO WAY

It has proven easier to banish smallpox from the earth than what has been called "mankind's last scourge"—illiteracy.

There are more than 800 million illiterate people in the world and their number is increasing, says UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. And one major reason why years of effort and expenditure have not had greater impact on the problem is lack of will.

This conclusion is based on an analysis of literacy projects in UNESCO's Experimental World Literacy Program. Thirteen countries in three continents took part in the program—Algeria, Ethiopia, Guinea, Madagascar, Mali, Sudan, Tanzania, India, Iran, Syria and Ecuador. The degree of success of the projects varied as widely as the countries themselves.

At the beginning of the experiment, says the program's report, "most countries knew how to approach (and in some cases achieve) much more massive literacy as a part of broader socio-economic change, if they wanted to."

But most apparently did not want to. Only Tanzania was stimulated to launch a mass campaign. An eventual worldwide campaign for the eradication of iliteracy, hoped for when the program was launched, is not yet in sight.

"Neither literacy nor development can be willed into existence by international agencies," says UNESCO. "At best they can perhaps prick the conscience of national governments."

CLEAVER: TURNING INTO A PATRIOT?

Travel, it's said, is broadening, and the latest proof of the truth of that adage comes from a most unlikely source.

Since he fled the United States in 1969 in the face of charges of parole violation, Eldridge Cleaver, once a leader in the Black Panther party, has been traveling in self-imposed exile—first in Cuba, then Algeria, China, North Vietnam and North Korea. What he has seen in those countries, and the thinking he has done in the past six years, has changed his mind about a lot of things.

Indeed, some of the former leftist radical's remarks in an interview recently published in Rolling Stone magazine could have been taken from a speech by a Ronald Reagan.

For example, "after all my travels and seeing the socialists' world up very close, really seeing Soviet Union and China function, well, I now think that the United States should be second to none militarily, that we have to strengthen, not demise (sic) our military, and that really causes a lot of people's mouths to drop open."

It is hardly a case that Cleaver now believes that everything is just fine in this best of all possible countries: "Wherever there seem to be forces of fascism and repression, the United States always seems to side with them. That has to change.

"But these days socialism is always shown representing the future. However, experience has shown Socialists-Communists strap onto people the most oppressive regimes in the history of the world. Regimes that are dictatorships, dictatorships in the name of the proletariat, not by the proletariat."

The reason these regimes are very hard to get rid of—and here many will consider Cleaver to be on shaky ground—is "because they give people something everyone longs for, and that's economic security, if you will, economic democracy." Few, however, will argue with his statement that "political democracy, which I think is the more important of the two, doesn't exist in Communist countries."

We still need more political democracy in the United States, says Cleaver. We need to have more say in economic matters. But "I think that the United States has more of a chance at working the balance out. I think that most Americans know that and that is why Americans have always been so anti-Communist, why they have always been so antitotalitarian and why they made the shift from hating fascists to hating Communists so swiftly in the '40s."

Instead of moving toward detente with the Soviet Union, the United States should be resolutely opposed to the present regime, says Cleaver, putting it in terms perhaps less delicate than a Ronald Reagan might: "Because the Soviet Union is very shaky at this point and we should not be trying to hold them up, and that is just what we are doing with detente." Detente rhetoric about not interfering in Soviet internal affairs sounds, Cleaver says, like Chamberlain and Hitler all over again.

"If we are truly the force for democracy in the world, then we have an obligation to help in the disintegration of the totalitarian Soviet regime."

If Cleaver himself seems to have moved from one extreme to another, it was, after all, that undoubted patriot Barry Goldwater who once said that extremism in defense of liberty is no vice.

"I want the United States to be vastly improved, not be done in. We have to maintain a vigilance against people who want to destroy the United States....

"I'm turning into a patriot," says Eldridge Cleaver. A lot of other Americans could benefit from similar traveling.

XXX

LUCK IS NOT ENOUGH

A rotesque and unenviable record has been set, one that all Americans hope will never be surpassed or even approached. One of the best liked and most personable presidents in many years, Gerald R. Ford is nevertheless the first to have had two assaults made on his life-both in the same month and in the same state, and both by women.

Again, an incalculable element of luck saved the nation from tragedy. Despite extra-strong security precautions instituted in San Francisco because of the assault against Mr. Ford in Sacramento some two weeks previously, another unbalanced person got close enough to the President-with a gun-to again have changed the course of history.

Is there someone else out there who even now is thinking about making the third try a charm? By "out there" we don't necessarily mean California or the San Francisco area, which certainly have no monopoly on strange people. But surely it would seem to be tempting fate in the extreme for the President to try to prove something by exposing himself to another crowd anywhere near where his life has twice been put in jeopardy. Yet that is what he presently plans to do, later in October.

Mr. Ford has reiterated his determination not to capitulate to those who, as he puts it, are trying to tear down what is best in America. Of course, he cannot. He must continue to travel the nation and meet the people.

But there must be better ways of doing it, than appearing for a fleeting instant as he leaves a hotel to enter a limousine and speed away. How many people lining the streets actually catch more than a glimpse of the President? How many have a chance to say a word to him, much less conduct a "dialogue" on the problems of the day?

A better method by which the President could meet the people would be through a series of town half-type meetings in communities around the country. Because each meeting would be prearranged and prescreened, security would be made infinitely easier, even if the audience numbered in the several thousands. In addition, some thoughtful questions and some helpful answers might even be exchanged.

The President might also reconsider his position on gun control. Now obviously, no matter how strict the controls, a determined assassin will find a way to secure a weapon and an opportunity to use it.

But that is precisely the point: We may not be able to do very much about the determined assassin, but there is no excuse for making it so ridiculously easy for even a certifiable nut to obtain a gun.

Sarah Jane Moore, the woman in San Francisco, had been arrested for illegal possession of a revolver. Yet somehow, despite her record of erratic behavior, she managed to obtain another revolver which she fired at the President the very next day.

Are we saying that we can do nothing to keep guns out of the hands of those who are unstable or potentially dangerous in our society and still respect the rights of decent Americans who collect and enjoy guns? If so, we can look forward to continuing to pay a high price for the easy availability of guns.

We are just plain lucky that in Gerald Ford's case, the price has twice been averted.

XXX

BLOW TO HONEST CITIZEN

Another blow has been dealt the law-abiding American gun owner, this time in the form of a proposal that all the states ban private handgun ownership and possession by 1983.

The recommendation by the National Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals rests on the shaky assumption that a strong correlation exists between the number of privately-owned handguns and the use of guns in crimes of violence. Such thinking is not only unsubstantiated, but it leads to laws which are in direct opposition to the fundamental right of gun ownership for protection and sport, expressly guaranteed by the Constitution.

The Attorney General of Nevada has said, "If honest citizens are stripped of their protection, the criminal element would run rampant." His prediction has been borne out in many other countries, not the least of which is the Soviet Union. The USSR has always exercised stiff restraints on handguns and other firearms, yet several "underground gun factories" have been discovered, and theft of firearms for illegal purposes continues unabated.

In the end, this nation's level of violence can only be effectively reduced by stricter enforcement of existing laws and punishment of the criminal-not his weapon.

America Must Learn: bankers, 'bosses,' unionists work together abroad to avert inflation holocaust

NEW YORK — I've been flying transcontinental so much these days I should have my own mini-newsroom pressurized at 39,000 feet -- but hopping the continents is the only way to digest "the whole thing" these choppy economic days. One thing you learn -- European workers, having suffered the post-war inflation holocaust, now discipline themselves in the crunch.

America's rank and file haven't seen wheelbarrows loaded with paper currency being trundled down to the local bakery for a loaf of bread. So there's little discipline.

For example, on the coast the other day some of my Screen Actors Guild friends told me of a 60 per cent pay and fringe raise just won by the Hollywood movie and television crafts (technicians). That's heady stuff – and catching.

Influential construction union leaders in California and the Northwest talked of making next year's contracts happy go-rounds for their people -- meaning increases hitting about $20 an hour, especially in the newly booming power plant construction field.

And I recalled a recent July day in London when 25,000 British plumbers, fearing their nation might go bankrupt, agreed to surrender their 12 pounds (about $25 then) a week increase and accept half, to set a precedent in the battle on inflation touched off by rebellious left-winger coaldiggers.

And a few days later in Bonn, Germany, my friend Dr. Hans Friderichs, minister of finance, was calling labor leaders, bankers, businessmen and cabinet officers – including Chancellor Helmut Schmidt – to an internal economic summit conference. There were – and are – just over one million German jobless. Unprecedented since the holocaust. The nation's leaders did meet Aug. 26 in what they call the "Concerted Action Committee," or group, headed by Dr. Friderichs.

There they discussed wages, productivity, money borrowing interests rates, profits – and how to preserve the fabulous prosperity being threatened by inflation and sinking exports. Everybody agreed to make concessions.

Later while criss-crossing the Federal Republic of Germany I met Hamburg's very young mayor Hans-Ulrich Klowse and Frankfurt's militant Oberburgemeister Rudi Arndt, too. They have their municipal problems, as do the German "states" and federal government. But on Aug. 8 in Frankfurt when I wandered over to a grave session of some of Germany's most powerful labor leaders, those who head the public employes sector (including one which unioinizes soldiers), I found them deeply concerned over the economic threat to their democratic Fourth Reich.

They talked of their membership's needs. But they had seen the holocaust. Or had grown up during the wheelbarrow money days. And they began to develop plans to save the mark.

This brand of "concerted action" doesn't truly exist .here -- though you can find it by any other name in virtually all free nations.

And still later after jetting back from the AFL-CIO convention into moneyless New York City rife with talk of a general strike, I sought out Ken McFeeley, president ofthe 25,000 member Police Benevolent Assn. (PBA).

He said he would back a general strike -- and his men would not report to their stationhouses if a city-wide stoppage ever were called by other unions.

McFeeley did add that his men would walk the streets in civilian clothes, armed and ready to protect some of the citizenry against criminals. But no squad cars, no official police duty. He and those then urging the general strike – which would be the eighth in American history if ever it came off– said they just couldn't "live" with Mayor Beame's proposed three year wage, cost of living and increment freeze.

Their rank and file just wouldn't take it, they said. Well, that rank and file is young, like the youthful rock and rollers who provoked the Broadway musicians strike. They haven't seen wheelbarrow money.

And it's just the beginning. The teamsters, in addition to playing golf with their old friend Dick Nixon, are meeting in LaCosta, Calif., so their International Executive Board can polish up demands for the next national master freight bargaining covering almost 500,000 truck drivers. That contract expires next March 31. But the quiet negotiations are on now – and will be publicly kicked off Dec. 10. And the final settlement won't be cheap for the tens of thousands of truck companies.

There has been White House pressure on Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons and secretary treasurer Dusty Miller. There have been "suggestions" from Labor Secretary (now also the White House brain trust) John Dunlop for an early settlement of this pace-setting compact. But Fitz and Dusty aren't among John's admirers. They vetoed him for Secretary of Labor just before Nixon appointed Pete Brennan (he didn't show at the AFL-CIO convention).

So it looks like a heavy settlement – while the construction workers, the entire rubber industry, the electrical production field and the make or break auto arena watch closely.

There are too many personalities in conflict there, too many who literally hate each other and too many for too many reasons playing upsmanship.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Public service profitable for Senator

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Sartorially splendid Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., has mastered the art of turning public service to private gain.

The tall, soft-spoken legislator has travelled the world at public expense. He augmented his congressional salary by pocketing much of the money given him for office supplies. And he's used his staff for personal matters.

In addition, Bevill's files reveal that his staffers in Alabama routinely note the race of constituents seeking help. A (B) is placed in the upper right hand corner of an index card if the person happens to be black. Apparently, the Alabama-based staffers had in mind treating the blacks as second-class constituents, but we have learned Bevill's Washington office handles them equally.

A former floor leader for Gov. George Wallace in the Alabama House, Bevill represents the industrial towns at the Northern end of the state. His constituents are largely factory workers, whose average income is $6,350 a year.

Bevill himself has pocketed $7,000 in the last two years from his stationery fund. It is all perfectly legal. But most members of Congress use the money for office supplies.

The stationery fund also came in handy when Bevill wanted china and an electric typewriter for his wife, and a pocket calculator for his daughter.

The congressman assured our associate Jack Cloherty that all of the money taken from the stationery account was declared as personal income on his federal taxes.

Bevill does not have to declare, of course. all of the traveling he's done on Uncle Sam's nickel.

He's junketed to the Soviet Union, Chile, Panama, Hong Kong, Hawaii and Argentina.

The Argentine trip produced a problem for him. It seems that he bought a pony skin coat for his wife at a Buenos Aires antique shop. Two years later, the coat ripped. State Department cables reveal that the brassy Bevill returned the coat to the U.S. embassy in Buenos Aires. An embassy official quick-marched to the shop and got the coat repaired.

Bevill also uses his own staff to handle his personal business. One member of his staff recently put together a scrapbook of his son's basketball exploits. And another routinely handles such matters as paying a local boy for mowing Bevill's lawn in Alabama.

All of this might be overlooked if Bevill was laboring hard on behalf of his constituents. But we found that his traveling and his workouts in the House gym leave him little time for his district's problems.

He is absorbed, it seems, in serving himself.

Footnote: Bevill denied that he had an office staffer assembling a scrapbook on his son, and defended his travel as necessary. He first denied that the (B) notation was used at all. When pressed, he said he was not sure what it might mean.

BEDTIME STORY: A confidential Senate memorandum lashes the pharmaceutical industry for knowingly peddling more than $34 million annually in "worthless" over-the-counter sleep inducers and tranquilizers.

Targets of the staff memo to Chairman Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., of the Senate Small Business Committee include such widely advertised drugs as Compoz, Sominex and Nytol.

The memo, prepared in advance of Nelson Committee hearings on Oct. 29 and 30, suggests the federal government ban false drug ads from the airwaves and other media.

"It is clear from the evidence we have acquired," states the memo, "that millions and millions of dollars are being spent on these worthless products ... Over $34 million were spent in 1974 on sleeping aids alone."

Government studies show Compoz "was even less effective than a placebo (a 'sugar pill')" and that Sominex "was also ineffective," says the memo. Other drugs under the committee's scrutiny include San-Man, Sleep-Eze, Somnicaps and Sure-Sleep.

"In view of the lack of efficacy ... and the possible dangers from some of the ingredients . . . it is curious that the Federal Trade Commission has not moved against the advertising of these drugs," said the memorandum.

Footnote: A major danger, the committee's past hearings have shown, is the impact TV drug advertising has in encouraging juvenile pill-popping. The Council on Children, Media and Merchandising found that each child in the U.S. is exposed to more than 1,000 televised drug ads a year.

JACKIE'S JOB: Jacqueline Onassis' new $200-a-week editing job at Viking Press has exposed her to a rush of books dealing with the assassination of her late husband, President John Kennedy.

Similar books, most of them wild and amateurish, have also been flooding other publishing houses now that the Senate Intelligence Committee is probing the John Kennedy death.

The degree of success of the projects varied as widely as the countries themselves.

At the beginning of the experiment, says the program's report, "most countries knew how to approach (and in some cases achieve) much more massive literacy as a part of broader socio-economic change, if they wanted to."

But most apparently did not want to. Only Tanzania was stimulated to launch a mass campaign. An eventual worldwide campaign for the eradication of iliteracy, hoped for when the program was launched, is not yet in sight.

"Neither literacy nor development can be willed into existence by international agencies," says UNESCO. "At best they can perhaps prick the conscience of national governments."

CLEAVER: TURNING INTO A PATRIOT?

Travel, it's said, is broadening, and the latest proof of the truth of that adage comes from a most unlikely source.

Since he fled the United States in 1969 in the face of charges of parole violation, Eldridge Cleaver, once a leader in the Black Panther party, has been traveling in self-imposed exile—first in Cuba, then Algeria, China, North Vietnam and North Korea. What he has seen in those countries, and the thinking he has done in the past six years, has changed his mind about a lot of things.

Indeed, some of the former leftist radical's remarks in an interview recently published in Rolling Stone magazine could have been taken from a speech by a Ronald Reagan.

For example, "after all my travels and seeing the socialists' world up very close, really seeing Soviet Union and China function, well, I now think that the United States should be second to none militarily, that we have to strengthen, not demise (sic) our military, and that really causes a lot of people's mouths to drop open."

It is hardly a case that Cleaver now believes that everything is just fine in this best of all possible countries: "Wherever there seem to be forces of fascism and repression, the United States always seems to side with them. That has to change.

"But these days socialism is always shown representing the future. However, experience has shown Socialists-Communists strap onto people the most oppressive regimes in the history of the world. Regimes that are dictatorships, dictatorships in the name of the proletariat, not by the proletariat."

The reason these regimes are very hard to get rid of—and here many will consider Cleaver to be on shaky ground—is "because they give people something everyone longs for, and that's economic security, if you will, economic democracy." Few, however, will argue with his statement that "political democracy, which I think is the more important of the two, doesn't exist in Communist countries."

We still need more political democracy in the United States, says Cleaver. We need to have more say in economic matters. But "I think that the United States has more of a chance at working the balance out. I think that most Americans know that and that is why Americans have always been so anti-Communist, why they have always been so antitotalitarian and why they made the shift from hating fascists to hating Communists so swiftly in the '40s."

Instead of moving toward detente with the Soviet Union, the United States should be resolutely opposed to the present regime, says Cleaver, putting it in terms perhaps less delicate than a Ronald Reagan might: "Because the Soviet Union is very shaky at this point and we should not be trying to hold them up, and that is just what we are doing with detente." Detente rhetoric about not interfering in Soviet internal affairs sounds, Cleaver says, like Chamberlain and Hitler all over again.

"If we are truly the force for democracy in the world, then we have an obligation to help in the disintegration of the totalitarian Soviet regime."

If Cleaver himself seems to have moved from one extreme to another, it was, after all, that undoubted patriot Barry Goldwater who once said that extremism in defense of liberty is no vice.

"I want the United States to be vastly improved, not be done in. We have to maintain a vigilance against people who want to destroy the United States....

"I'm turning into a patriot," says Eldridge Cleaver. A lot of other Americans could benefit from similar traveling.

LUCK IS NOT ENOUGH

A rotesque and unenviable record has been set, one that all Americans hope will never be surpassed or even approached. One of the best liked and most personable presidents in many years, Gerald R. Ford is nevertheless the first to have had two assaults made on his life-both in the same month and in the same state, and both by women.

Again, an incalculable element of luck saved the nation from tragedy. Despite extra-strong security precautions instituted in San Francisco because of the assault against Mr. Ford in Sacramento some two weeks previously, another unbalanced person got close enough to the President-with a gun-to again have changed the course of history.

Is there someone else out there who even now is thinking about making the third try a charm? By "out there" we don't necessarily mean California or the San Francisco area, which certainly have no monopoly on strange people. But surely it would seem to be tempting fate in the extreme for the President to try to prove something by exposing himself to another crowd anywhere near where his life has twice been put in jeopardy. Yet that is what he presently plans to do, later in October.

Mr. Ford has reiterated his determination not to capitulate to those who, as he puts it, are trying to tear down what is best in America. Of course, he cannot. He must continue to travel the nation and meet the people.

But there must be better ways of doing it, than appearing for a fleeting instant as he leaves a hotel to enter a limousine and speed away. How many people lining the streets actually catch more than a glimpse of the President? How many have a chance to say a word to him, much less conduct a "dialogue" on the problems of the day?

A better method by which the President could meet the people would be through a series of town hall-type meetings in communities around the country. Because each meeting would be prearranged and prescreened, security would be made infinitely easier, even if the audience numbered in the several thousands. In addition, some thoughtful questions and some helpful answers might even be exchanged.

The President might also reconsider his position on gun control. Now obviously, no matter how strict the controls, a determined assassin will find a way to secure a weapon and an opportunity to use it.

But that is precisely the point: We may not be able to do very much about the determined assassin, but there is no excuse for making it so ridiculously easy for even a certifiable nut to obtain a gun.

Sarah Jane Moore, the woman in San Francisco, had been arrested for illegal possession of a revolver. Yet somehow, despite her record of erratic behavior, she managed to obtain another revolver which she fired at the President the very next day.

Are we saying that we can do nothing to keep guns out of the hands of those who are unstable or potentially dangerous in our society and still respect the rights of decent Americans who collect and enjoy guns? If so, we can look forward to continuing to pay a high price for the easy availability of guns.

We are just plain lucky that in Gerald Ford's case, the price has twice been averted.

XXX

BLOW TO HONEST CITIZEN

Another blow has been dealt the law-abiding American gun owner, this time in the form of a proposal that all the states ban private handgun ownership and possession by 1983.

The recommendation by the National Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals rests on the shaky assumption that a strong correlation exists between the number of privately-owned handguns and the use of guns in crimes of violence. Such thinking is not only unsubstantiated, but it leads to laws which are in direct opposition to the fundamental right of gun ownership for protection and sport, expressly guaranteed by the Constitution.

The Attorney General of Nevada has said, "If honest citizens are stripped of their protection, the criminal element would run rampant." His prediction has been borne out in many other countries, not the least of which is the Soviet Union. The USSR has always exercised stiff restraints on handguns and other firearms, yet several "underground gun factories" have been discovered, and theft of firearms for illegal purposes continues unabated.

In the end, this nation's level of violence can only be effectively reduced by stricter enforcement of existing laws and punishment of the criminal-not his weapon.

An indoor gardener whose eagerness exceeded his skill was continually dissappointed by the sickly state of his ferns. With the best intentions in the world, he still overfed, overwatered, and overcultivated. Then he went on a short vacation, and returned to find his ferns full and vigorous.

Puzzled he sought the reason for the change from a more successful horticulturist. The knowledgeable grower, aware of his friend's tendency to kill plants with kindness, only replied, with a cryptic smile, "Absence makes the fronds grow heartier."

An ex-farmer who became a mayor of a small town noticed the lawn in front of City Hall looked a bit scraggly. "Guess we better throw some cow manure on that grass," he told the clerk.

A bit later the clerk observed to the mayor's secretary, "Someone should tell the mayor to say fertilizer instead of manure."

"It might be better to leave well enough alone," the secretary advised. "It took his wife seven years to get him to say manure."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

America Must Learn: bankers, 'bosses,' unionists work together abroad to avert inflation holocaust

NEW YORK — I've been flying transcontinental so much these days I should have my own mini-newsroom pressurized at 39,000 feet -- but hopping the continents is the only way to digest "the whole thing" these choppy economic days. One thing you learn -- European workers, having suffered the post-war inflation holocaust, now discipline themselves in the crunch.

America's rank and file haven't seen wheelbarrows loaded with paper currency being trundled down to the local bakery for a loaf of bread. So there's little discipline.

For example, on the coast the other day some of my Screen Actors Guild friends told me of a 60 per cent pay and fringe raise just won by the Hollywood movie and television crafts (technicians). That's heady stuff -- and catching.

Influential construction union leaders in California and the Northwest talked of making next year's contracts happy go-rounds for their people -- meaning increases hitting about $20 an hour, especially in the newly booming power plant construction field.

And I recalled a recent July day in London when 25,000 British plumbers, fearing their nation might go bankrupt, agreed to surrender their 12 pounds (about $25 then) a week increase and accept half, to set a precedent in the battle on inflation touched off by rebellious left-winger coaldiggers.

And a few days later in Bonn, Germany, my friend Dr. Hans Friderichs, minister of finance, was calling labor leaders, bankers, businessmen and cabinet officers – including Chancellor Helmut Schmidt – to an internal economic summit conference. There were – and are – just over one million German jobless. Unprecedented since the holocaust. The nation's leaders did meet Aug. 26 in what they call the "Concerted Action Committee," or group, headed by Dr. Friderichs.

There they discussed wages, productivity, money borrowing interests rates, profits – and how to preserve the fabulous prosperity being threatened by inflation and sinking exports. Everybody agreed to make concessions.

Later while criss-crossing the Federal Republic of Germany I met Hamburg's very young mayor Hans-Ulrich Klowse and Frankfurt's militant Oberburgemeister Rudi Arndt, too. They have their municipal problems, as do the German "states" and federal government. But on Aug. 8 in Frankfurt when I wandered over to a grave session of some of Germany's most powerful labor leaders, those who head the public employes sector (including one which unioinizes soldiers), I found them deeply concerned over the economic threat to their democratic Fourth Reich.

They talked of their membership's needs. But they had seen the holocaust. Or had grown up during the wheelbarrow money days. And they began to develop plans to save the mark.

This brand of "concerted action" doesn't truly exist here -- though you can find it by any other name in virtually all free nations.

And still later after jetting back from the AFL-CIO convention into moneyless New York City rife with talk of a general strike, I sought out Ken McFeeley, president of the 25,000 member Police Benevolent Assn. (PBA).

He said he would back a general strike -- and his men would not report to their stationhouses if a city-wide stoppage ever were called by other unions.

McFeeley did add that his men would walk the streets in civilian clothes, armed and ready to protect some of the citizenry against criminals. But no squad cars, no official police duty. He and those then urging the general strike – which would be the eighth in American history if ever it came off– said they just couldn't "live" with Mayor Beame's proposed three year wage, cost of living and increment freeze.

Their rank and file just wouldn't take it, they said. Well, that rank and file is young, like the youthful rock and rollers who provoked the Broadway musicians strike. They haven't seen wheelbarrow money.

And it's just the beginning. The teamsters, in addition to playing golf with their old friend Dick Nixon, are meeting in LaCosta, Calif., so their International Executive Board can polish up demands for the next national master freight bargaining covering almost 500,000 truck drivers. That contract expires next March 31. But the quiet negotiations are on now – and will be publicly kicked off Dec. 10. And the final settlement won't be cheap for the tens of thousands of truck companies.

There has been White House pressure on Teamsters general president Frank Fitzsimmons and secretary treasurer Dusty Miller. There have been "suggestions" from Labor Secretary (now also the White House brain trust) John Dunlop for an early settlement of this pace-setting compact. But Fitz and Dusty aren't among John's admirers. They vetoed him for Secretary of Labor just before Nixon appointed Pete Brennan (he didn't show at the AFL-CIO convention).

So it looks like a heavy settlement – while the construction workers, the entire rubber industry, the electrical production field and the make or break auto arena watch closely.

There are too many personalities in conflict there, too many who literally hate each other and too many for too many reasons playing upsmanship.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Public service profitable for Senator

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Sartorially splendid Rep. Tom Bevill, D-Ala., has mastered the art of turning public service to private gain.

The tall, soft-spoken legislator has travelled the world at public expense. He augmented his congressional salary by pocketing much of the money given him for office supplies. And he's used his staff for personal matters.

In addition, Bevill's files reveal that his staffers in Alabama routinely note the race of constituents seeking help. A (B) is placed in the upper right hand corner of an index card if the person happens to be black. Apparently, the Alabama-based staffers had in mind treating the blacks as second-class constituents, but we have learned Bevill's Washington office handles them equally.

A former floor leader for Gov. George Wallace in the Alabama House, Bevill represents the industrial towns at the Northern end of the state. His constituents are largely factory workers, whose average income is $6,350 a year.

Bevill himself has pocketed $7,000 in the last two years from his stationery fund. It is all perfectly legal. But most members of Congress use the money for office supplies.

The stationery fund also came in handy when Bevill wanted china and an electric typewriter for his wife, and a pocket calculator for his daughter.

The congressman assured our associate Jack Cloherty that all of the money taken from the stationery account was declared as personal income on his federal taxes.

Bevill does not have to declare, of course, all of the traveling he's done on Uncle Sam's nickel.

He's junketed to the Soviet Union, Chile, Panama, Hong Kong, Hawaii and Argentina.

The Argentine trip produced a problem for him. It seems that he bought a pony skin coat for his wife at a Buenos Aires antique shop. Two years later, the coat ripped. State Department cables reveal that the brassy Bevill returned the coat to the U.S. embassy in Buenos Aires. An embassy official quick-marched to the shop and got the coat repaired.

Bevill also uses his own staff to handle his personal business. One member of his staff recently put together a scrapbook of his son's basketball exploits. And another routinely handles such matters as paying a local boy for mowing Bevill's lawn in Alabama.

All of this might be overlooked if Bevill was laboring hard on behalf of his constituents. But we found that his traveling and his workouts in the House gym leave him little time for his district's problems.

He is absorbed, it seems, in serving himself.

Footnote: Bevill denied that he had an office staffer assembling a scrapbook on his son, and defended his travel as necessary. He first denied that the (B) notation was used at all. When pressed, he said he was not sure what it might mean.

BEDTIME STORY: A confidential Senate memorandum lashes the pharmaceutical industry for knowingly peddling more than $34 million annually in "worthless" over-the-counter sleep inducers and tranquilizers.

Targets of the staff memo to Chairman Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., of the Senate Small Business Committee include such widely advertised drugs as Compoz, Sominex and Nytol.

The memo, prepared in advance of Nelson Committee hearings on Oct. 29 and 30, suggests the federal government ban false drug ads from the airwaves and other media.

"It is clear from the evidence we have acquired," states the memo, "that millions and millions of dollars are being spent on these worthless products ... Over $34 million were spent in 1974 on sleeping aids alone."

Government studies show Compoz "was even less effective than a placebo (a 'sugar pill')" and that Sominex "was also ineffective," says the memo. Other drugs under the committee's scrutiny include San-Man, Sleep-Eze, Somnicaps and Sure-Sleep.

"In view of the lack of efficacy ... and the possible dangers from some of the ingredients . . . it is curious that the Federal Trade Commission has not moved against the advertising of these drugs," said the memorandum.

Footnote: A major danger, the committee's past hearings have shown, is the impact TV drug advertising has in encouraging juvenile pill-popping. The Council on Children, Media and Merchandising found that each child in the U.S. is exposed to more than 1,000 televised drug ads a year.

JACKIE'S JOB: Jacqueline Onassis' new $200-a-week editing job at Viking Press has exposed her to a rush of books dealing with the assassination of her late husband, President John Kennedy.

Similar books, most of them wild and amateurish, have also been flooding other publishing houses now that the Senate Intelligence Committee is probing the John Kennedy death.

Another Cole belting blues

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago premed student Natalie Cole had dreams of stethoscopes and scalpels. That was before the 25-year-old daughter of the late Nat "King" Cole began belting out blues and rock songs with the determination of a seasoned gospel singer.

Now Miss Cole, whose 5-foot-9 trim body is topped with a mane of curly, ebony hair, has cut one album, is working on a second and has a hit single. It is called, "This Will Be."

"I had a music appreciation class that lasted half a semester, and I took piano lessons for two years — the quickest two years of my life," she yelled from the kitchen of her tiny upper West Side Manhattan apartment.

"Really," she said, leaving the kitchen with a neatly made peanut butter sandwich, "I've been so unbelievably unmusical about the whole thing. My father is probably disgusted with me because he never thought I was interested in music."

If the legendary singer-pianist-composer were alive today, she said, he'd tell her to "do your own thing." Natalie's mother never encouraged her to go into show business because "she knew the knocks my father had to go through."

Natalie does not plan to follow in her father's image — "I believe in myself, and I believe in my talent." She jumps up from the dining room table to change the radio station from soothing jazz to funky rock.

"People are going to add 'the daughter of' anyway, and I can understand that," she said. "But I would rather go on my own name, because I wouldn't really be true to myself, and I would never know in the end if I was being recognized as Natalie Cole or the 'daughter.'"

Success has not spoiled Natalie Cole. She says she does not hunger for the opulent lifestyle of the superstar. Instead, she has set three goals for herself: a house in the country so her family can get together; children of her own; and a boat, because she likes the water.

When Natalie talks about her brothers and sisters and mother, an infectious smile dances across her face. The same smile appears when she looks from her apartment window to the vast blueness of the Hudson River and the rich greenery of the New Jersey cliffs.

"My life has changed," she finally says, resting her head on her hands as she straddles a chair in front of her desk with Nat Cole photos.

"A year ago I was uptight and not too easy to get along with. I was a loner, really," she said. Then the big chance came when her singing career began to leap and she became a Baptist.

She has been compared to a young Aretha Franklin when she first started. And Natalie admits that the legendary rhythm and blues singer has been an influence in her own career.

The case of the wise wisdom-seeker

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Morris went to college in the hopes of getting something out of it. As it turned out, however, he couldn't even get himself out of it. After four years of study, he had learned so little that the college refused to graduate him.

Indignant, Morris started a lawsuit against the college to get back the tuition he had paid during his four misspent years at that institution.

"I was tricked and deceived," he complained to the judge. "The college catalog, as well as the faculty members, falsely represented that if I went to their college I would be taught wisdom and truth. The fact is, I was taught neither."

"Maybe not," conceded a college official, "but, that was Morris' fault and not the fault of the college or his professors. While you can lead a boy to college, you can't make him think. As a freshman, Morris started at the bottom and never woke up."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the college give wisdom-seeking Morris back his tuition money?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that "wisdom" is not a subject which can be taught and no rational person would believe any claim to contrary.

"Wisdom," noted the judge, is a hoped for end product of education, experience and ability which many seek and many fail to obtain.

Dr. Lamb

Six year old needs to diet

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a slightly pudgy 6year-old boy who needs to lose about eight pounds, according to his pediatrician. My problem is how to limit his diet without overdoing it or leaving out any important elements. Teaching him long range eating habits in addition to losing this eight pounds is my goal.

We started his diet last week by limiting him to one glass of skim milk or juice with meals (unlimited water after that), dropping second helpings, and keeping his dessert portions tiny. After school snacks have been fruits, four ounces of fruited yogurt, or a handful of shelled or dry roast peanuts or cheese.

What added suggestions can you give me for managing his diet? How many calories are minimum for him at 4 feet and 66 pounds?

DEAR READER — Yes, for his age and height he is a little chubby. You will do him an enormous favor if you control his weight now. It could help him prevent an obesity problem later in life.

There is no magic number of calories, but I would try to give him at least 1200 calories a day. We can reduce adults on a balanced diet of 1200 calories daily. The important point is to see if he is actually losing fat from under his skin and at the same time give him all the essentials.

You need to be sure he is getting enough minerals, particularly calcium for that growing skeleton, and vitamins. And be sure he gets enough complete protein to provide all the essential amino acids.

He needs 34 grams of protein a day (Recommended Daily Allowance, 1974). An 8-ounce glass of fortified skim milk will contain 10 grams of good protein. A pound of raw meat, chicken or fish, after removal of fat and bone so it is edible weight, will contain 100 grams of good protein. On that basis you can figure how much fortified skim milk and meat products to give him daily. He needs 800 grams of calcium and two glasses of fortified skim milk will only provide 700 grams of it, so I would include two glasses of fortified skim milk a day. That plus one three-and-a-half-ounce serving of meat or half that amount twice a day will meet his protein requirements and, with a little calcium from other foods, will probably meet his needs.

You should eliminate all concentrated sweets. Those peanuts, even dry roasted, are loaded with calories, and, other than cottage cheese, cheese is loaded with calories and 80 per cent of the calories are fat. Stress cereals, bulk vegetables, fruit, lean meats and fortified skim milk.

Another Cole belting blues

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago premed student Natalie Cole had dreams of stethoscopes and scalpels. That was before the 25-year-old daughter of the late Nat "King" Cole began belting out blues and rock songs with the determination of a seasoned gospel singer.

Now Miss Cole, whose 5-foot-9 trim body is topped with a mane of curly, ebony hair, has cut one album, is working on a second and has a hit single. It is called, "This Will Be."

"I had a music appreciation class that lasted half a semester, and I took piano lessons for two years — the quickest two years of my life," she yelled from the kitchen of her tiny upper West Side Manhattan apartment.

"Really," she said, leaving the kitchen with a neatly made peanut butter sandwich, "I've been so unbelievably unmusical about the whole thing. My father is probably disgusted with me because he never thought I was interested in music."

If the legendary singer-pianist-composer were alive today, she said, he'd tell her to "do your own thing." Natalie's mother never encouraged her to go into show business because "she knew the knocks my father had to go through."

Natalie does not plan to follow in her father's image — "I believe in myself, and I believe in my talent." She jumps up from the dining room table to change the radio station from soothing jazz to funky rock.

"People are going to add 'the daughter of' anyway, and I can understand that," she said. "But I would rather go on my own name, because I wouldn't really be true to myself, and I would never know in the end if I was being recognized as Natalie Cole or the 'daughter.'"

Success has not spoiled Natalie Cole. She says she does not hunger for the opulent lifestyle of the superstar. Instead, she has set three goals for herself: a house in the country so her family can get together; children of her own; and a boat, because she likes the water.

"My life has changed," she finally says, resting her head on her hands as she straddles a chair in front of her desk with Nat Cole photos.

"A year ago I was uptight and not too easy to get along with. I was a loner, really," she said. Then the big chance came when her singing career began to leap and she became a Baptist.

She has been compared to a young Aretha Franklin when she first started. And Natalie admits that the legendary rhythm and blues singer has been an influence in her own career.

What's the law?

The case of the wise wisdom-seeker

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Morris went to college in the hopes of getting something out of it. As it turned out, however, he couldn't even get himself out of it. After four years of study, he had learned so little that the college refused to graduate him.

"I was tricked and deceived," he complained to the judge. "The college catalog, as well as the faculty members, falsely represented that if I went to their college I would be taught wisdom and truth. The fact is, I was taught neither."

"Maybe not," conceded a college official, "but, that was Morris' fault and not the fault of the college or his professors. While you can lead a boy to college, you can't make him think. As a freshman, Morris started at the bottom and never woke up."

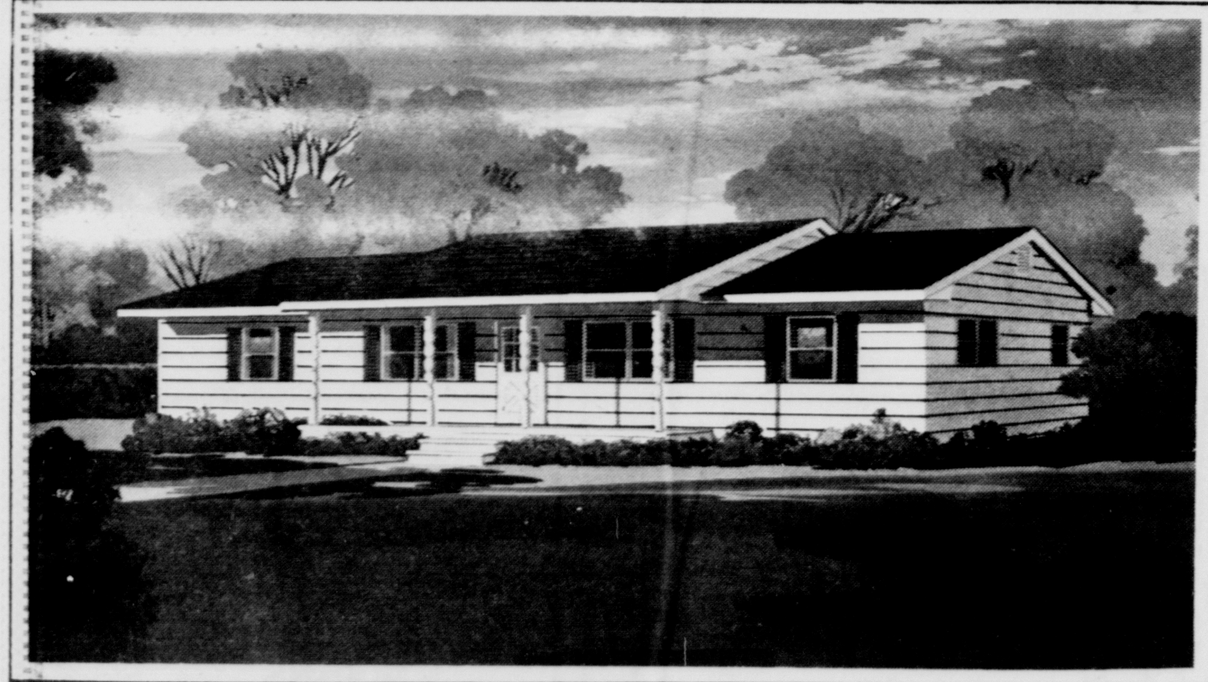

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the college give wisdom-seeking Morris back his tuition money?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that "wisdom" is not a subject which can be taught and no rational person would believe any claim to contrary.

"Wisdom," noted the judge, is a hoped for end product of education, experience and ability which many seek and many fail to obtain.

Republican party leader is woman

OKLAHOMA CITY — Oklahoma's top Republican leader is a blue-eyed blonde mother of three who likes to be called chairman and compares her political philosophy to a medium well done steak.

Paula Unruh, the first woman to head either major party in Oklahoma, has ambitious plans to crack the Sooner congressional front dominated by Democrats in all but two elections since statehood.

"I can tell you for sure," she said, "we are going to have candidates in all six congressional districts next year."

Mrs. Unruh believes it is too early for Oklahoma Republicans to make a choice between President Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, whose followers now claim a majority of the Oklahoma party's leadership.

"Oklahoma's state convention (next May 15) falls right in the middle of the presidential primaries," she said. "Chances are the die will be cast by then, and the way the winds are going to blow will be halfway determined. This may take some of the pressure off."

"I think of a political philosophy like a steak," she said. "There is rare, medium and well done. I think of myself as medium well ... I'm really not middle of the road. I'm more right than that, but definitely not hard core right."

Newest synthetics are today's fabrics

By JEWEL GRADY

Years back it didn't take a very extensive vocabulary to buy wisely for your wardrobe and your home. Wool, cotton, linen and silk represented pretty adequate verbal equipment.

But today it is different. Development in synthetics have brought numerous new basic fibers. Each of these is used in countless constructions in woven and knitted and nonwoven fabrics. New finishes have been perfected, every one representing a special advantage in appearance and serviceability. As a result, today's textile terms run into the thousands.

Fashion-conscious people reading current papers and magazines have encountered some of the following terms. Some are terms that are not really new but have been revived. Fabric dictionary of terms defines them this way.

Crepe de Chine: A very fine, lightweight silk made with a crepe weave, is usually constructed with raw silk warp and crepe-twist silk filling, alternating with 2-S twist and 2-Z twist. Usually piece-dyed or printed. The fabric is used in making lingerie, blouses and dresses.

Chino: A term used to designate a particular type of all-cotton army twill. Made of combed two-ply cotton yarns. Vat-dyed khaki color. It is a plain or twill weave and has been popular as a summer uniform for the Army.

Ombre: Means shade in French and fabrics with stripes of various coloring are often sold under this name.

Ultrasuede: Synthetic fabric that has the appearance of real suede. The fiber content of Ultrasuede is 60 per cent polyester and 40 per cent nonfibrous polyurethane. It has been referred to as the suede of the future.

Heat transfer printing: A process used for transferring design from paper to knit fabrics. Primarily polyester at the present time. New patterns are possible which have brilliant colors and clarity that previously could not be done by standard printing methods.

The list offered here does not pretend to be a comprehensive list merely a representative sampling of the new terms.

IUD users hospitalized

CHICAGO (AP) — The death rate associated with intrauterine contraceptive devices is lower than that associated with birth control pills, but more women who use the devices are hospitalized than women on the pill, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

Five women died and 7,862 were hospitalized because of problems associated with the device IUS during the first six months of 1973, according to a nationwide statistical sampling of doctors made by the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, the journal said.

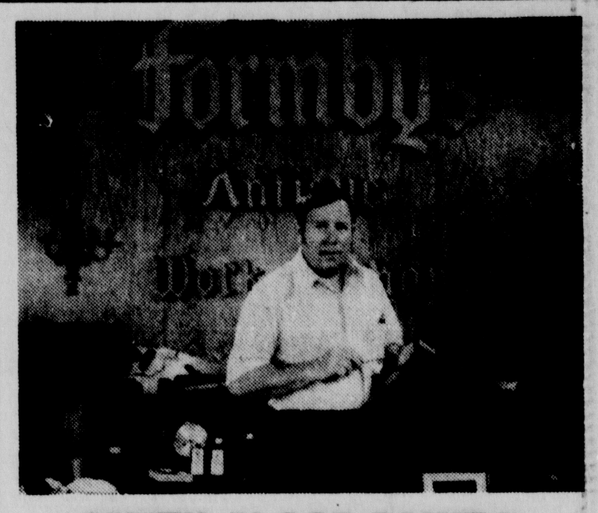

An estimated 3.2 million women int the United States and Puerto Rico were wearing IUDs at the time of the survey.

Results of the survey were reported in two articles written for the Oct. 6 issue by Drs. Henry S. Kahn of Emory University school of medicine and Carl W. Tyler of the CDC.

The survey showed that the projected hospitalization rate from IUS complications was seven-tenths to seven per 1,000 woman-years of use, compared wit an estimated rate of one per 1,000 woman-years attributed to the use of oral contraceptives.

However, it showed an estimated death rate of one to 7.3 per million woman-years of IUS use, compared with a death rate of 22 to 45 per million woman-years of oral contraceptive use.

Four of the five reported IUS fatalities involved serious infections, two of them in relation to pregnancy. The fifth death was attributed to heart problems.

Technique reverses vasectomy operation

SAN FRISCO (AP) — A urologist reports a new surgical technique initially has proven effective in reversing vasectomy — an operation once considered almost synonymous with lifelong sterility.

Dr. Sherman J. Silber reported Tuesday that the first 24 patients who underwent the operation now register a normal sperm count, and 16 of their wives have gotten pregnant.

Silber, assistant professor of urology at the University of California Medical Center and chief of urology at the Veteran's Administration Hospital here, said the new surgical technique utilizes a 40-power microscope; nylon thread so slinder it is invisible to the naked eye; and knives, forceps and other surgical tools honed so finely their points are barely visible.

The microsurgery techniques are used to rejoin the male sperm ducts which are severed in vasectomy — a relatively simple, inexpensive and effective birth control operation that about a million American men undergo each year.

Vasectomy patients are routinely warned beforehand that they probably will never be able to conceive children again. To date, the average success rate for conventional surgical reversal techniques has been about 30 per cent.

"With the sadly increasing rate of divorce and remarriage in this country, we may expect to see an increasing number of men requesting vasectomy reversal," Silber says.

College son's schedule is like trip to Bahamas

By ERMA BOMBECK

I got the idea the other morning when I shook the blankets and my college son fell out of them. It was 11 a.m.

"Aren't you going to get up?" I suggersted.

"What do you want from me?" he mumbled. "Five days a week, I get up at the break of noon, drag out to the campus, break my brain over books, come home, and watch a little TV to unwind."

The schedule sounded like three weeks in the Bahamas.

At noon, when he wandered out into the kitchen, he said, "What's for breakfast?"

I reached into my slacks pocket and unfolded my schedule. "Let's see ... noon on Friday ... sorry, I don't have a kitchen lab at noon. This period I've got 'TV Unwind.' Pass me my lunch tray."

"What schedule?" he asked.

"Everyone around here has a schedule but me," I said. "Things are going to change. After this semester I'll have one breakfast at 8 o'clock. After that you'll have to get it on campus."

"You have flipped," he said storming from the room.

Minutes later, he returned with a pair of new jeans. "Could you shrink these before I leave at two?"

I checked the schedule. "Don't have laundry on my schedule this term. Couldn't work it in. I'm only carrying 96 hours. Last semester I carried 127, which left only 41 for my major, sleep."

"Okay," he grinned, "I'll play your little game. Could I use your car today or don't you want to give up your parking space?"

I unfolded the schedule again. "No. I've got a field trip to the Beauty Shop at 2:30. I missed last week and it was an important session, touch up roots."

"And after that?"

"A class at the bank in financing, a session in marketing at the grocery store, then home for nutrition. That's it. No Saturday classes. I'm free until Monday at 8 a.m."

I opened the refrigerator and began to go for seconds on my lunch tray. My son slammed the door. "Ah ah, no fair cramming. You either know it or you don't."

No wonder the childbirth classes were cancelled due to lack of interest.

Ann Landers

Girl to marry self-destructive boy

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in love with this boy and we plan to marry. We've been going together for six months but there's a problem I can't discuss with anyone -- least of all him. Doug is about 5-10, weighs 110 pounds and is not in good shape physically. I don't want to end up a young widow.

He eats the worst junk in the world, cares nothing about nourishing food or a balanced meal, and never gets enough rest. He was in a car accident two years ago and received multiple head injuries. The doctor told him he shouldn't drink but he gets loaded nearly every night and it worries me sick. I know this is harming him because he gets terrific headaches, has blurred vision and has trouble remembering things.

I just found out Doug takes LSD, uppers and downers, and also pot. I've begged him to take care of himself but he says he has to stay on the booze and junk to keep himself going. He's working two jobs trying to save enough money to buy a house so we can get married.

When I try to talk sense to him he says, "Stop nagging me. I'm doing all this for you." What can I do to help him see he's killing himself? -- Albq, N.M.

Dear Albq: Nothing. He'll kill himself before he'll listen to you or anyone else. Doug's physical condition is the result of his mental condition. He's self-destructive and severely unbalanced.

Your only hope is to make it clear you'll have nothing more to do with him unless he goes to a doctor and gets straightened out. If he refuses, my advice is to stop seeing him. The fact that you tolerate such erratic behavior and would actually marry such a sick guy raises many questions in my mind about your mental health.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 35 years old, a housewife, and have three children. We have been married 18 years. Our eldest child is 13. My husband is European-born and does not believe that partents should go anywhere without their children. The two of us have never been out for one evening together in our entire married life.

Am I wrong to tell him I don't think this is fair to me? When I mentioned it a few times he said, "There will be plenty of time for us to go out together after the children are on their own." What about it? He's a good husband but I -- Feel Trapped

Dear Trapped: According to my arithmetic you married this man when you were 17 years old. I'm betting he is several years your senior and has always considered you more of a child than a woman.

It is virtually impossible for a wife to change her husband's thinking about family life after 18 years -- especially if it's part of his cultural heritage. You might attempt a breakthrough by asking a close relative to babysit on your next wedding anniversary or birthday -- whichever comes first. And good luck. I hope it works.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I walked into the kitchen and caught my mother steaming open a letter with the tea kettle. It was to my 17-year-old sister from her boyfriend.

Mom seemed embarrassed and then said, "I'm doing this because I don't trust Marie and a mother has the right to know what's going on." Is Mom right or wrong? -- Miss Dunno

Dear Miss: She's wrong. Such a mother will never know what's going on because her children won't trust her. Trust begets trust and it starts early. Your mom lost out a long time ago.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Your only hope is to make it clear you'll have nothing more to do with him unless he goes to a doctor and gets straightened out. If he refuses, my advice is to stop seeing him. The fact that you tolerate such erratic behavior and would actually marry such a sick guy raises many questions in my mind about your mental health.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 35 years old, a housewife, and have three children. We have been married 18 years. Our eldest child is 13. My husband is European-born and does not believe that partents should go anywhere without their children. The two of us have never been out for one evening together in our entire married life.

Am I wrong to tell him I don't think this is fair to me? When I mentioned it a few times he said, "There will be plenty of time for us to go out together after the children are on their own." What about it? He's a good husband but I – Feel Trapped

Dear Trapped: According to my arithmetic you married this man when you were 17 years old. I'm betting he is several years your senior and has always considered you more of a child than a woman.

It is virtually impossible for a wife to change her husband's thinking about family life after 18 years – especially if it's part of his cultural heritage. You might attempt a breakthrough by asking a close relative to babysit on your next wedding anniversary or birthday – whichever comes first. And good luck. I hope it works.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I walked into the kitchen and caught my mother steaming open a letter with the tea kettle. It was to my 17-year-old sister from her boyfriend.

Mom seemed embarrassed and then said, "I'm doing this because I don't trust Marie and a mother has the right to know what's going on." Is Mom right or wrong? – Miss Dunno

Dear Miss: She's wrong. Such a mother will never know what's going on because her children won't trust her. Trust begets trust and it starts early. Your mom lost out a long time ago.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Madge Bennett, 84, of Route Three died at 2:40 a.m. today in Sikeston Convalescent Center.

He was a farmer and commercial fisherman.

On Sept. 22, 1930, he married Marie Hutson, who died Feb. 5, 1964.

Survivors include three sons, Claud and Albert Housman of El Centro, Calif., and Bruce Housman of Charleston; four daughters, Mrs. Sylvester Vinson of Richmond, Mich., Mrs. Sammy Holt of El Centro, Mrs. Pete Fernandez of Poway, Calif., and Mrs. William Holt of Highland, Calif.; one brother Oscar Housman of Charleston; and 23 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Richland discusses dress code

ESSEX — Since officials talked with students in the Richland School District, there have been no more problems with student dress or with the dress code, Supt. Jim Lawrence said today.

Several parents had discussed the question of a dress code and student dress at a meeting of the board of education in September. They complimented the code, but some of the parents encouraged the board to make it more restrictive.

The board of education discussed a proposal to ban short-shorts or real short miniskirts, but no action was taken.

Carrell Odom, high school principal, said that there was not a serious problem, but occasionally a girl came in with clothes which were too revealing.

Lawrence said today that officials had talked with the students, explaining to the students the discussion that the school board had with the parents. Since then, there have been no complaints.

"It's going real smooth," Lawrence said. The Board of Education Thursday night took no action on the proposal to make the dress code stricter.

The code allows boys to wear hairstyles to their shirt collar and permits girls to wear slacks.

The board Thursday night also discussed the possibility of buying three new buses and new furniture for the 1976-77 school year, but took no action.

Lawrence said that a decision will probably be made at the next board meeting, to be held in November.

Concentration

Scholarship renewed

ST. LOUIS — Malin Henrietta Killian of New Madrid, has received a renewal of her scholarship to study music therapy at Maryville College in St. Louis County, President Harriet Switzer, R.S.C.J. announced during convocation ceremonies.

The scholarships, conferred annually, honor Leo C. Miller who taught music at Maryville for more than 50 years. The awards recognize the students' academic, musical and community achievements.

Maryville's music therapy program includes courses in music, science, psychology, sociology, as well as music therapy.

Qualified music therapists work with adults and children in a variety of settings. Hospitals, clinics, day care and geriatric centers, and mental health centers, along with educattional institutions, are becoming increasingly interested in the discipline.

Anyone interested in learning more about the music therapy program, the scholarships or other fields at Maryville, may contact the Admissions Office, 13550 Conway Road.

Vocational aptitude tests to be given

A special aptitude test, designed to provide information on vocational aptitudes to high school seniors and other interested students, will be administered to various high schools throughout the area in the near future.

The test, called the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) will be administered by the Armed Forces representatives to all interested students.

The test is designed to measure specific aptitudes, relating to specific jobs and career areas, rather than general intelligence or overall ability. The results will equally help the student and his counselor in improved job placement, both in military area or in a civilian job field.

Five aptitude areas are measured by the ASVAB. Test results will indicate the student's ability in the electronic area, the general mechanical area, the motor mechanical aptitude area, the clerical administrative area, and the general technical area. Scores in each of these five areas are matched to military and civilian jobs for which student is most qualified, thus allowing more effective counselling in both school courses and future job placement and interest.

Area libraries to work together to better serve

Representatives of the Boards of Trustees of the Sikeston and Chaffee Public Libraries and the Riverside Regional Library met at Riverside's Central Center in Jackson Wednesday evening for a conference on library cooperation and service.

The three libraries have formed an Association of Cooperating Libraries, for the purpose of working together to give the best possible service to the patrons of their areas.

First formed in 1970, the Association has worked in the field of audio-visual service and book circulation, giving the patrons of the three libraries equal access to the holdings of each library, regardless of place of residence. Representatives of the Boards of Trustees meet semi-annually on a regular basis to discuss areas of mutual interest and cooperation.

Present at the meeting Wednesday were Mrs. Paul Farris, Librarian, Mrs. Floyd Nickerson and Miss Ann Whitfield of Chaffee; Miss Lenore Norman, Librarian, and Miss Uriel Haw and Mrs. Bob McCord of Sikeston; Riverside Regional Library representatives in attendance were Theodore Fischer of Altenburg; John Bert of Perryville; Roland Sander of Gordonville; Earl Oldham of Burfordsville, Librarian; and Mrs. L. W. Kasten and Mrs. Alfred Limbaugh, Assistant Librarian of Jackson.

ner had been in Caruthersville several months, working at cotton gins and living at the home of a sister, Mrs. Mary Starnes. He also reported the mothers of both Tanner and his nephew live at Salem, Ill., and the boy had been living with Mrs. Starnes because of the estrangement of his parents.

Sheriff Shelly said soon after news of the robbery at Braggadocio was broadcast, Mrs. Starnes called his office and reported a target pistol belonging to husband was missing.

Johnson had told officers a boy took the money from the cash register at his store while a young man held a target pistol on him.

A ground and aerial search failed to produce any trace of the Braggadocio robbers.

Sheriff Shelly said Kansas authorities at Topeka notified him that checks and food stamps taken in the holdup at Braggadocio had been found in a black Mercury compact which was abandoned at Sedan.

The Kansas authorities said the car had seven bullet holes in it, but Sheriff Shelly said they had no explanation for them.

He said he understood the two fuitives may have held a Kansas farm family as hostages for a time.

Mrs. Cagle and a passenger, Sharon Cagle, 13, of Caruthersville received injuries and were taken to Pemiscot County Medical Center at Hayti.

A Bloomfield man received minor injuries in a one-car 15 a.m. today half a mile west of Arab in Bollinger County on Route P.

The accident occurred when Lawrence Frederick Hicks, 22, of Bloomfield lost control of a westbound station wagon at the top of a hill and the vehicle overturned three times.

ORCHESTRA FORMED TO PLAY MODERNS

NEW YORK (AP) — The New Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Weisberg and Charles Wuorinen, has been formed to present contemporary works in excellent first performances, soon after they are written.

The orchestra also intends to present 20th century classics, in an attempt to encourage audiences to renew and confirm their involvement with the music of our time.

The first concert was Sept. 16 at Carnegie Hall, playing music written by Aaron Copland, Wuorinen and Stefan Wolpe. For this concert, which was funded by the Rockefeller Foundation and the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation, the orchestra had 35 hours of rehearsal.

Recession lessens; welfare costs rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government figures show that the nation's industry marched solidly away from recession in September but that welfare costs rose 20 per cent during the last fiscal year because of the recession.

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the output of mines, factories and utilities increased 1.9 per cent in September, the fifth consecutive monthly increase and the largest gain since November 1964, when the advance was 2.8 per cent. The September increase was the biggest one-month jump in production in nearly 11 years.

More production by industry means more jobs for Americans, and the production report released Thursday clearly was part of the "very encouraging" economic news predicted Wednesday by President Ford.

Additional good economic news is expected Monday when the Commerce Department will report a big increase in economic output during the third quarter, as measured by the Gross National Product.

However, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday that welfare expenditures increased 20 per cent during the 1975 fiscal year to a total of $22.5 billion.

Nearly $13 billion of the total was for medical care for the poor.

James L. Pate, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said Thursday the GNP increased at least 9 to 10 per cent and possibly more at an annual rate, during the July through September period.

Hayti trucking firm pays violation fine

JEFFERSON CITY--A Hayti dump truck firm is one of four truck operators which have paid fines for violations of Missouri Public Service Commission regulations.

The Jerry Reece Trucking Co. of Hayti paid a settlement of $700 for hauling gravel in the southeast Missouri area at rates lower than those authorized by the Commission.

A total of $1,300 has been paid by the four operators. The money, which goes to the State School Fund, was accepted by the commission in lieu of filing suit in court for penalties against the carriers.

Other companies paying fines included Hunt and Son of Warrensburg, a general commodities carrier. They paid a settlement of $300 for continuing operations while under commission suspension for failure to file proof of proper insurance.

DeSoto Express of DeSoto, a general commodities carrier limited to 9,000 pounds gross weight, paid a settlement of $200 for operating while under suspension for not filing proof of insurance.

Ken Mudd of St. Louis, a dump truck operator, paid a $100 settlement for making hauls in the Crystal City-Pevely area without certification from the Commission.

Richland discusses dress code

ESSEX — Since officials talked with students in the Richland School District, there have been no more problems with student dress or with the dress code, Supt. Jim Lawrence said today.

Several parents had discussed the question of a dress code and student dress at a meeting of the board of education in September. They complimented the code, but some of the parents encouraged the board to make it more restrictive.

The board of education discussed a proposal to ban short-shorts or real short miniskirts, but no action was taken.

Carrell Odom, high school principal, said that there was not a serious problem, but occasionally a girl came in with clothes which were too revealing.

Lawrence said today that officials had talked with the students, explaining to the students the discussion that the school board had with the parents. Since then, there have been no complaints.

"It's going real smooth," Lawrence said. The Board of Education Thursday night took no action on the proposal to make the dress code stricter.

The code allows boys to wear hairstyles to their shirt collar and permits girls to wear slacks.

The board Thursday night also discussed the possibility of buying three new buses and new furniture for the 1976-77 school year, but took no action.

Lawrence said that a decision will probably be made at the next board meeting, to be held in November.

Concentration

Scholarship renewed

ST. LOUIS — Malin Henrietta Killian of New Madrid, has received a renewal of her scholarship to study music therapy at Maryville College in St. Louis County, President Harriet Switzer, R.S.C.J. announced during convocation ceremonies.

The scholarships, conferred annually, honor Leo C. Miller who taught music at Maryville for more than 50 years. The awards recognize the students' academic, musical and community achievements.

Maryville's music therapy program includes courses in music, science, psychology, sociology, as well as music therapy.

Qualified music therapists work with adults and children in a variety of settings. Hospitals, clinics, day care and geriatric centers, and mental health centers, along with educattional institutions, are becoming increasingly interested in the discipline.

Anyone interested in learning more about the music therapy program, the scholarships or other fields at Maryville, may contact the Admissions Office, 13550 Conway Road.

Located on 350 acres in West St. Louis County, Maryville's campus is at Highway 40 and Woods Mill Road.

Vocational aptitude tests to be given

A special aptitude test, designed to provide information on vocational aptitudes to high school seniors and other interested students, will be administered to various high schools throughout the area in the near future.

The test, called the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery (ASVAB) will be administered by the Armed Forces representatives to all interested students.

The test is designed to measure specific aptitudes, relating to specific jobs and career areas, rather than general intelligence or overall ability. The results will equally help the student and his counselor in improved job placement, both in military area or in a civilian job field.

Five aptitude areas are measured by the ASVAB. Test results will indicate the student's ability in the electronic area, the general mechanical area, the motor mechanical aptitude area, the clerical administrative area, and the general technical area. Scores in each of these five areas are matched to military and civilian jobs for which student is most qualified, thus allowing more effective counselling in both school courses and future job placement and interest.

Area libraries to work together to better serve

Dogs bid for 5th straight at Dexter

By DALE FORBIS

The Dexter Bearcats are in a rebuilding year. And, in a rebuilding year you take your lumps. Like 27-0, 63-8 ...

It's coach Clyde Vaughn's job to put the pieces back together after watching coach Ed Nichols run up the score on his hapless Bearcats last week before a homecoming crowd at East Prairie. The team Sikeston's Bulldogs will oppose is anything but big, very young, but respectably quick. Many of the starters against the heavily-favored Bulldogs come from Dexter's junior varsity, a team that has played just once because the kids are needed to play with the big boys this year.

"Our group of seniors is very small this year," said a suffering Vaughn.

So, it's up to the Bulldogs to decide how hard they want to play while going for their fifth win in a row. Will the team rise to the challenge of yet another game and assure SHS of its first break even season since 1972, or will the play get sloppy and set the stage for the largest upset of the 1975 season?

A good crowd always helps and Sikeston's been getting that. To be favored three weeks in a row is almost unheard of around Sikeston-land, but it is still just a bit early to be getting big-headed and taking any team too lightly.

Smith was walking through a sweaty lockerroom after Thursday practice, enjoying an easy teasing reparte with his players --- a much more frequent happening this year than in the past.

"It's easier to laugh when you're winning," notes a visiting scribe, and coach Jim Graham just smiles his agreement.

It takes a lot of heart for a team to keep fighting hard in a game they are supposed to win easily. But, this year's team has displayed a lot of heart. Coach Smith has urged his pupils to, "Gain big accomplishments by taking small steps." The Dexter game is another small step.

We think the kids will win. It is easier to smile when you win. And, smiling is a lot more fun than trying to explain what "we shoulda done ..."

Big Red machine runs over Red Sox

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list after being hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After looking sick in the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly regained his health with two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Red Sox 6-2 Thursday night and took a 3-2 stranglehold in the best-of-seven game classic.

The National League champions can polish off the Red Sox Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park, where Jack Billingham will face Boston left-hander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before the appreciative, roaring hometown fans in Riverfront Stadium.

In the sixth, Perez got another good pitch from the beefy Boston right-hander and parked that one a little higher over the left-center field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

Perez had tried everything to crack the distressing drought. He told reporters that his superstitious wife, Pituka, urged him to try driving a different way to the ballpark for Game 5. Also, she took Tony shopping before the game to "spend money" and try to get his mind off the Series.

"She tried everything to get me back in the groove again," Perez said.

Perez has been in slumps before but never worried about them.

"I've hit a lot worse," he said, "but in a World Series everyone knows about it."

While the Cuban-born star was making life miserable for the American League champions with his bat, Gullett was making them look sick with his arm. The Reds' best pitcher gave up just two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with just one out to go.

"I lost a little bit in the ninth," said Gullett, explaining he got cold while waiting during a long Cincinnati eighth inning.

When the chunky southpaw gave up two-out singles to Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk, Manager Sparky Anderson was Johnny on the Spot.

"Sparky came out and said, 'You're not going anywhere,'" Gullett said. "'There's two outs,' Anderson told me. He wanted me to work from the windup because I have better stuff that way, but I didn't."

When the obviously tired Gullett gave up a run-scoring double to Fred Lynn, Anderson revisited the mound and got the left-hander out of the game. In came Rawly Eastwick, who blew three pitches by the dangerous Rico Petrocelli for the clincher.

The Cincinnati kid gave up a run in the first inning on a triple by Denny Doyle and Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly before Boston's ninth-inning flurry. Along with Perez' four RBI, the Reds got a run in the fifth on Gullett's single and a double by Pete Rose and one in the eighth on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Their spirits boosted by their first victory of the season, Southeast Missouri State University's Indians invade Springfield Saturday night for a 7:30 p.m. game at Briggs Stadium against Southwest Missouri State University.

The Indians will have several things going against them as they try to extend their MIAA mark to 2-0.

For one, the Bears will be smarting from last week's 24-14 loss in their MIAA opener to Central Missouri State University of Warrensburg. For another, they will remember last year's 39-20 loss to Southeast Missouri State in a game in which they were favored.

In addition, although the Bears had their first winning season since 1966 last fall, they have not lost on the Briggs Stadium turf since Oct. 6, 1973.

Actually, both the Bears and the Indians figured to show better in 1975 than they have thus far. Southwest Missouri State was the pick of MIAA coaches in a pre-season poll to win the league championship. Southeast Missouri State finished second in the balloting.

The Indians are 1-4 on the season with their only victory coming last week against the University of Missouri -- Rolla by a 17-0 score. The Bears are 2-2-1 with wins over Kansas State -- Pittsburg and Missouri Southern.

The Indians' chances this week would seem to hinge on two things: getting their ground attack going and stopping the SMS ground attack.

Coach Jim Lohr's troops had their best rushing outing of the season against UMR, gaining 234 yards. But they did not overpower the Miners, especially in the second half, and Coach Lohr says, "We have to be able to run the ball better to win ball games."

SHS netters advance

POPLAR BLUFF — Sikeston's girls' tennis team pulled the upset of the year by waltzing through the sub-district round of the state tennis tournament at Poplar Bluff unscathed. All four Sikeston entries survived their competition Wednesday and pleased coach Berta Schurenberg immensely.

"If we keep playing like this, a trip to Columbia is coming up," said the coach.

"We're a really young team, mostly sophomores. I knew we could play like this all the time."

Sikeston's was the only team of ten entered that didn't have at least one player eliminated.

In singles action, fourth-sseded Lynn Bizzell Swept Farmer 6-0, 6-0. Then she defeated McKeel of Cape Central 6-2, 6-1. Gayle Strickland received first-round bye, then edged third-seeded Van Guilder of Cape 6-4, 7-5.

The doubles team of Melissa Lea and Linda Green also received a first round bye, then came back to eliminate Street and Doraah from Caruthersville 7-5, 6-2.

Susan Drumm and Marilyn Neel defeated Meine and Efferin of Fredericktown in the first round 6-4, 6-0. Then, they sent the Farmington duo of Ward and Delezine home 6-4, 6-2.

The girls take to the Poplar Bluff courts again on Saturday for the conclusion of district play.

Dogs bid for 5th straight at Dexter

By DALE FORBIS

The Dexter Bearcats are in a rebuilding year. And, in a rebuilding year you take your lumps. Like 27-0, 63-8 ...

It's coach Clyde Vaughn's job to put the pieces back together after watching coach Ed Nichols run up the score on his hapless Bearcats last week before a homecoming crowd at East Prairie. The team Sikeston's Bulldogs will oppose is anything but big, very young, but respectably quick. Many of the starters against the heavily-favored Bulldogs come from Dexter's junior varsity, a team that has played just once because the kids are needed to play with the big boys this year.

"Our group of seniors is very small this year," said a suffering Vaughn.

So, it's up to the Bulldogs to decide how hard they want to play while going for their fifth win in a row. Will the team rise to the challenge of yet another game and assure SHS of its first break even season since 1972, or will the play get sloppy and set the stage for the largest upset of the 1975 season?

A good crowd always helps and Sikeston's been getting that. To be favored three weeks in a row is almost unheard of around Sikeston-land, but it is still just a bit early to be getting big-headed and taking any team too lightly.

Smith was walking through a sweaty lockerroom after Thursday practice, enjoying an easy teasing reparte with his players --- a much more frequent happening this year than in the past.

"It's easier to laugh when you're winning," notes a visiting scribe, and coach Jim Graham just smiles his agreement.

It takes a lot of heart for a team to keep fighting hard in a game they are supposed to win easily. But, this year's team has displayed a lot of heart. Coach Smith has urged his pupils to, "Gain big accomplishments by taking small steps." The Dexter game is another small step.

We think the kids will win. It is easier to smile when you win. And, smiling is a lot more fun than trying to explain what "we shoulda done ..."

Big Red machine runs over Red Sox

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list after being hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After looking sick in the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly regained his health with two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Red Sox 6-2 Thursday night and took a 3-2 stranglehold in the best-of-seven game classic.

The National League champions can polish off the Red Sox Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park, where Jack Billingham will face Boston left-hander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before the appreciative, roaring hometown fans in Riverfront Stadium.

In the sixth, Perez got another good pitch from the beefy Boston right-hander and parked that one a little higher over the left-center field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

Perez had tried everything to crack the distressing drought. He told reporters that his superstitious wife, Pituka, urged him to try driving a different way to the ballpark for Game 5. Also, she took Tony shopping before the game to "spend money" and try to get his mind off the Series.

"She tried everything to get me back in the groove again," Perez said.

Perez has been in slumps before but never worried about them.

"I've hit a lot worse," he said, "but in a World Series everyone knows about it."

While the Cuban-born star was making life miserable for the American League champions with his bat, Gullett was making them look sick with his arm. The Reds' best pitcher gave up just two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with just one out to go.

"I lost a little bit in the ninth," said Gullett, explaining he got cold while waiting during a long Cincinnati eighth inning.

When the chunky southpaw gave up two-out singles to Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk, Manager Sparky Anderson was Johnny on the Spot.

"Sparky came out and said, 'You're not going anywhere,'" Gullett said. "'There's two outs,' Anderson told me. He wanted me to work from the windup because I have better stuff that way, but I didn't."

When the obviously tired Gullett gave up a run-scoring double to Fred Lynn, Anderson revisited the mound and got the left-hander out of the game. In came Rawly Eastwick, who blew three pitches by the dangerous Rico Petrocelli for the clincher.

The Cincinnati kid gave up a run in the first inning on a triple by Denny Doyle and Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly before Boston's ninth-inning flurry. Along with Perez' four RBI, the Reds got a run in the fifth on Gullett's single and a double by Pete Rose and one in the eighth on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Their spirits boosted by their first victory of the season, Southeast Missouri State University's Indians invade Springfield Saturday night for a 7:30 p.m. game at Briggs Stadium against Southwest Missouri State University.

The Indians will have several things going against them as they try to extend their MIAA mark to 2-0.

For one, the Bears will be smarting from last week's 24-14 loss in their MIAA opener to Central Missouri State University of Warrensburg. For another, they will remember last year's 39-20 loss to Southeast Missouri State in a game in which they were favored.

In addition, although the Bears had their first winning season since 1966 last fall, they have not lost on the Briggs Stadium turf since Oct. 6, 1973.

Actually, both the Bears and the Indians figured to show better in 1975 than they have thus far. Southwest Missouri State was the pick of MIAA coaches in a pre-season poll to win the league championship. Southeast Missouri State finished second in the balloting.

Annual SWC clash tops grid schedule

It's Texas-Arkansas time again and that means psychological warfare.

Both coaches have been hard at it this week, heaping praise on the opposition and predicting dire consequences for their own teams.

"They'll be playing before a highly partisan crowd," moaned Texas Coach Darrell Royal. "They're coming off a great win. Their morale will be sky high. And they haven't beaten us in a while."

"We know a lot about the Longhorns," countered Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "One thing I've learned is that they have a great knack of forgetting that loss to Oklahoma and getting ready for us. We've had our best success against them when they were beating Oklahoma."

Both clubs are 4-1. The Longhorns, ranked eighth nationally, dropped a 24-17 game to Oklahoma last week while the Razorbacks, rated 20th, were whipping Baylor 41-3.

Both clubs run the ball well. Arkansas is ranked second nationally in rushing and Texas is rated fourth. The Longhorns, however, are favored by one touchdown on the strength of a better passing game and better over-all defense.

Fullback Earl Campbell and quarterback Marty Akins are the big guns in the Texas arsenal, and Broyles says he doesn't have any special defense in mind. "We're praying," he said. "That's all you can do."

Running backs Jerry Eckwood and Ike Forte carry the load for Arkansas and both are averaging better than 100 yards a carry.

The kickoff is scheduled for 3:50 p.m. EDT and the game will be televised in most sections of the country by ABC.

Elsewhere, four of the nation's top five teams are heavily favored to remain unbeaten. But the fifth, fourth-ranked Nebraska, is expected to have its hands full at Oklahoma State. Top-ranked Ohio State entertains Wisconsin, No. 2 Oklahoma visits Kansas State.

Moss averaging 10.5 yds a carry

Poplar Bluff running back Mike Moss continues to be the outstanding individual performer in the area going into the seventh week of the season, according to statistics compiled by The Daily Standard.

Moss became the area's first athlete to crack the coveted 1,000 yard mark in rushing when he ran for an even 200 yards against Northwest of House Springs last week. Moss also leads the Northern Division and the district in scoring with 98 points.

East Prairie and Caruthersville dominated the Southern Division statistics again this week. Grady Williford and Audie Tarpley are waging the closest individual statistical battle in the passing department, where Caruthersville's Tarpley has the lead in passing yardage 556 to 487. But Tarpley has thrown more than twice as many passes as has Williford, who has connected on 24 of his 34 tosses. The two will hook up tonight as the Tigers and Eagles battle it out for the Southern Division championship at Caruthersville.

Illmo-Scott City's Steve Hanschen is the Bootheel Division's leading rusher and scorer all season long, but South Pemiscot back James Cooper is also raising a few eyebrows. Cooper, who is second in rushing with 371 yards, is also the division's leading receiver with twelve catches, three of them for touchdowns. Cooper is second in scoring behind Hanschen with 40 points. Hanschen has 60.

SPORTS CORNER

Egad, dear readers, the schedule makers have outdone themselves this weekend. We've only got an eight game schedule, but the matchups could decide the league titles.

In the North we find undefeated Mike Moss and Company battling Cape Girardeau Central. The South biggie has once beaten Caruthersville facing unbeaten East Prairie and in non-league play the big one is Hayti battling Malden.

So you see our 10-member panel has their work cut out for themselves tonight.

This will be the last column for this scribe as the Daily Standard sports editor. I will be leaving the friendly surroundings of the Bootheel .... hopefully for greener things -- like money. I've certainly enjoyed my association with the many fine people I've become associated with during my 10 years as sports editor. I'll miss you all.

Now, back to the job at hand ... Here's the way the panel sees tonight's contests.

SIKESTON VS. DEXTER -- It's unanimous ... The Bulldogs will continue to celebrate "Mothers Night" and claim their fifth straight victory of the season. You pick the score.

POPLAR BLUFF VS. CAPE CENTRAL -- The Mules only loss last season came at the hands of the Bengals ... Some think PB's win streak will end ... But that's more hopeful thinking than anything. Poplar Bluff will waltz.

CHARLESTON VS. KENNETT -- The Indians will be out of this contest before the first half ends ... CHS's speed will prevail and run up a big score.

EAST PRAIRIE VS. CARUTHERSVILLE -- This is the biggie ... Coach Ed Nichols' Eagles are having their best season in years and could highlight the season with a win here that could give them the Southern title ..... EPHS is a solid favorite among the panel, which by the way is made up mostly by participants from East Prairie. Charlie Francis and Bobby Gentry give Caruthersville a slim edge. I'll have to go with a deadlock.

CHAFFEE VS. DONIPHAN -- It's a toss up! My coin says Doniphan.

HAYTI VS. MALDEN -- Now here's another toss up! Another flip of the coin ... says Malden.

PORTAGEVILLE VS. CAIRO, Ill. -- This should be an interesting battle ... The Bulldogs have been having their problems this season with slowing the opposition scoring while Cairo has been having trouble scoring ... The makings of a big battle ... Cairo is a slight favorite.

Dale Forbis was the only panel member to fail and cast his vote this week. Maybe he'll handle the guessing game the rest of the season. GOOD DAY.

Rebels claim Stoddard title

ESSEX—The host Richland Rebels claimed the championship of the Stoddard County Volleyball Tournament Thursday night as they whipped Bloomfield in two games, 15-13 and 15-6. Bloomfield had been picked by many as the favorites going into the event, having captured the Woodland Invitational crown earlier in the season.

Richland had to come from behind in the first game of the championship match. Bloomfield held slight leads most of the way until the Rebels rallied to take the lead late in the game and get the win. Richland then went on to down the Wildcats in the second game, which was a much closer battle than the score indicated.

It wasn't all bad news for Bloomfield fans, however. The Wildcat B team edged Advance in a thrilling match that went the entire three games. After Bloomfield took the first game 15-5, Advance came back to win an equally lopsided contest, 15-6. The two clubs went at it in the third game, which had to go into overtime before Bloomfield finally came out on top 18-16.

Carrell Odom, principal at Richland High School, called the championship games "a couple of real good ones." A huge crowd of about 500 witnessed the title game in the varsity division.

Odom also congratulated referees Lonnie Hutchinson and Joe Pappas for their fine work during the tournament. "I thought they did a really fine job," said Odom.

The first and second place teams of each tournament received trophies.

Sikeston splits grid games at PB

POPLAR BLUFF--Sikeston ended the week with an even split against Poplar Bluff opponents by dividing a doubleheader Thursday night at the Mules' home field. Monday night the junior varsity used two second half touchdowns by high-scoring Glynn Felton to erase a 14-point halftime deficit and finish the hard-fought game in a 14-14 tie. That left the junior varsity with a 3-1-2 record.

Thursday night Sikeston's freshmen had a three-game win streak snapped 20-14, but the eighth grade Bulldogs belted their hosts 18-6.

Gary Lasater's ten-yard run in the first quarter gave Sikeston a 6-0 lead in the eighth grade contest. By half the score had been tied at six-all by the hosts. But, Lasater's second score of the night on a one-yard plunge in the third period gave Sikeston the lead for good. A 30-yard interception return by Terry Duncan in the fourth quarter completed Sikeston's scoring.

"Our defense really got tough in the second half," said coach Mike Foster. Foster pointed out that the eighth-grade Mules got no first downs and had negative yardage against the Pups in the last two quarters.

The frosh weren't quite as successful against the revenge-minded Bluff ninth-graders. Sikeston handed Poplar Bluff it's only defeat last year 28-14 and the Mules turned the tables on Sikeston this year, 20-14. Sikeston lost despite two touchdowns by a defensive player, Rodney Davis.

Davis returned a fumble in the second quarter nearly 60 yards to tie the game. But Poplar Bluff scored before half for a 12-6 lead. They clinched the win with a third-period t-d.

Then, in the fourth period, Davis gave Sikeston a chance when he stole the ball from a Mule runningback and returned it 20 yards for the score. Scott Wall's two-point conversion run put Sikeston within striking distance at 20-14, but the game ended before the Bulldog frosh could close the gap.

Annual SWC clash tops grid schedule

It's Texas-Arkansas time again and that means psychological warfare.

Both coaches have been hard at it this week, heaping praise on the opposition and predicting dire consequences for their own teams.

"They'll be playing before a highly partisan crowd," moaned Texas Coach Darrell Royal. "They're coming off a great win. Their morale will be sky high. And they haven't beaten us in a while."

"We know a lot about the Longhorns," countered Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles. "One thing I've learned is that they have a great knack of forgetting that loss to Oklahoma and getting ready for us. We've had our best success against them when they were beating Oklahoma."

Both clubs are 4-1. The Longhorns, ranked eighth nationally, dropped a 24-17 game to Oklahoma last week while the Razorbacks, rated 20th, were whipping Baylor 41-3.

Both clubs run the ball well. Arkansas is ranked second nationally in rushing and Texas is rated fourth. The Longhorns, however, are favored by one touchdown on the strength of a better passing game and better over-all defense.

Fullback Earl Campbell and quarterback Marty Akins are the big guns in the Texas arsenal, and Broyles says he doesn't have any special defense in mind. "We're praying," he said. "That's all you can do."

Running backs Jerry Eckwood and Ike Forte carry the load for Arkansas and both are averaging better than 100 yards a carry.

The kickoff is scheduled for 3:50 p.m. EDT and the game will be televised in most sections of the country by ABC.

Elsewhere, four of the nation's top five teams are heavily favored to remain unbeaten. But the fifth, fourth-ranked Nebraska, is expected to have its hands full at Oklahoma State. Top-ranked Ohio State entertains Wisconsin, No. 2 Oklahoma visits Kansas State.

Moss averaging 10.5 yds a carry

Poplar Bluff running back Mike Moss continues to be the outstanding individual performer in the area going into the seventh week of the season, according to statistics compiled by The Daily Standard.

Moss became the area's first athlete to crack the coveted 1,000 yard mark in rushing when he ran for an even 200 yards against Northwest of House Springs last week. Moss also leads the Northern Division and the district in scoring with 98 points.

East Prairie and Caruthersville dominated the Southern Division statistics again this week. Grady Williford and Audie Tarpley are waging the closest individual statistical battle in the passing department, where Caruthersville's Tarpley has the lead in passing yardage 556 to 487. But Tarpley has thrown more than twice as many passes as has Williford, who has connected on 24 of his 34 tosses. The two will hook up tonight as the Tigers and Eagles battle it out for the Southern Division championship at Caruthersville.

Illmo-Scott City's Steve Hanschen is the Bootheel Division's leading rusher and scorer all season long, but South Pemiscot back James Cooper is also raising a few eyebrows. Cooper, who is second in rushing with 371 yards, is also the division's leading receiver with twelve catches, three of them for touchdowns. Cooper is second in scoring behind Hanschen with 40 points. Hanschen has 60.

SPORTS CORNER

Egad, dear readers, the schedule makers have outdone themselves this weekend. We've only got an eight game schedule, but the matchups could decide the league titles.

In the North we find undefeated Mike Moss and Company battling Cape Girardeau Central. The South biggie has once beaten Caruthersville facing unbeaten East Prairie and in non-league play the big one is Hayti battling Malden.

So you see our 10-member panel has their work cut out for themselves tonight.

This will be the last column for this scribe as the Daily Standard sports editor. I will be leaving the friendly surroundings of the Bootheel .... hopefully for greener things -- like money. I've certainly enjoyed my association with the many fine people I've become associated with during my 10 years as sports editor. I'll miss you all.

Now, back to the job at hand ... Here's the way the panel sees tonight's contests.

SIKESTON VS. DEXTER -- It's unanimous ... The Bulldogs will continue to celebrate "Mothers Night" and claim their fifth straight victory of the season. You pick the score.

POPLAR BLUFF VS. CAPE CENTRAL -- The Mules only loss last season came at the hands of the Bengals ... Some think PB's win streak will end ... But that's more hopeful thinking than anything. Poplar Bluff will waltz.

CHARLESTON VS. KENNETT -- The Indians will be out of this contest before the first half ends ... CHS's speed will prevail and run up a big score.

EAST PRAIRIE VS. CARUTHERSVILLE -- This is the biggie ... Coach Ed Nichols' Eagles are having their best season in years and could highlight the season with a win here that could give them the Southern title ..... EPHS is a solid favorite among the panel, which by the way is made up mostly by participants from East Prairie. Charlie Francis and Bobby Gentry give Caruthersville a slim edge. I'll have to go with a deadlock.

CHAFFEE VS. DONIPHAN -- It's a toss up! My coin says Doniphan.

HAYTI VS. MALDEN -- Now here's another toss up! Another flip of the coin ... says Malden.

PORTAGEVILLE VS. CAIRO, Ill. -- This should be an interesting battle ... The Bulldogs have been having their problems this season with slowing the opposition scoring while Cairo has been having trouble scoring ... The makings of a big battle ... Cairo is a slight favorite.

Dale Forbis was the only panel member to fail and cast his vote this week. Maybe he'll handle the guessing game the rest of the season. GOOD DAY.

Rebels claim Stoddard title

ESSEX—The host Richland Rebels claimed the championship of the Stoddard County Volleyball Tournament Thursday night as they whipped Bloomfield in two games, 15-13 and 15-6. Bloomfield had been picked by many as the favorites going into the event, having captured the Woodland Invitational crown earlier in the season.

Richland had to come from behind in the first game of the championship match. Bloomfield held slight leads most of the way until the Rebels rallied to take the lead late in the game and get the win. Richland then went on to down the Wildcats in the second game, which was a much closer battle than the score indicated.

It wasn't all bad news for Bloomfield fans, however. The Wildcat B team edged Advance in a thrilling match that went the entire three games. After Bloomfield took the first game 15-5, Advance came back to win an equally lopsided contest, 15-6. The two clubs went at it in the third game, which had to go into overtime before Bloomfield finally came out on top 18-16.

Carrell Odom, principal at Richland High School, called the championship games "a couple of real good ones." A huge crowd of about 500 witnessed the title game in the varsity division.

Odom also congratulated referees Lonnie Hutchinson and Joe Pappas for their fine work during the tournament. "I thought they did a really fine job," said Odom.

The first and second place teams of each tournament received trophies.

Sikeston splits grid games at PB

POPLAR BLUFF--Sikeston ended the week with an even split against Poplar Bluff opponents by dividing a doubleheader Thursday night at the Mules' home field. Monday night the junior varsity used two second half touchdowns by high-scoring Glynn Felton to erase a 14-point halftime deficit and finish the hard-fought game in a 14-14 tie. That left the junior varsity with a 3-1-2 record.

Thursday night Sikeston's freshmen had a three-game win streak snapped 20-14, but the eighth grade Bulldogs belted their hosts 18-6.

Gary Lasater's ten-yard run in the first quarter gave Sikeston a 6-0 lead in the eighth grade contest. By half the score had been tied at six-all by the hosts. But, Lasater's second score of the night on a one-yard plunge in the third period gave Sikeston the lead for good. A 30-yard interception return by Terry Duncan in the fourth quarter completed Sikeston's scoring.

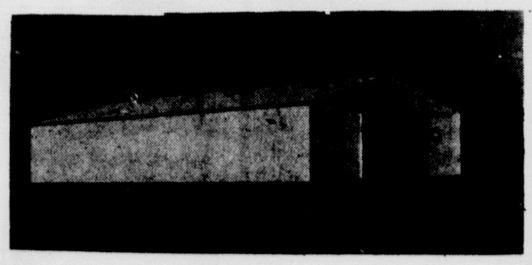

"Our defense really got tough in the second half," said coach Mike Foster. Foster pointed out that the eighth-grade Mules got no first downs and had negative yardage against the Pups in the last two quarters.

The frosh weren't quite as successful against the revenge-minded Bluff ninth-graders. Sikeston handed Poplar Bluff it's only defeat last year 28-14 and the Mules turned the tables on Sikeston this year, 20-14. Sikeston lost despite two touchdowns by a defensive player, Rodney Davis.

Davis returned a fumble in the second quarter nearly 60 yards to tie the game. But Poplar Bluff scored before half for a 12-6 lead. They clinched the win with a third-period t-d.

Then, in the fourth period, Davis gave Sikeston a chance when he stole the ball from a Mule runningback and returned it 20 yards for the score. Scott Wall's two-point conversion run put Sikeston within striking distance at 20-14, but the game ended before the Bulldog frosh could close the gap.

Burlison explains opposition to interim Sinai peace plan

BONNE TERRE — Tenth District Rep. Bill D. Burlison, D-Cape Girardeau explained his opposition to the interim Israeli-Egyptian peace accord and the stationing of U.S. personnel in the Sinai Desert in an address Thursday night before the Bonne Terre Chamber of Commerce.

Burlison called into question the basic effectiveness of the agreement and emphasized the enormous cost of both the accord and the commitments made by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in conjunction with the basic agreement.

Burlison pointed out the fact that the minimum of $3 billion to be requested for Israel and Egypt next year is greater than the total aid to all other countries. This is too much, he said, considering that the public debt is over$600 billion and increasing at the rate of $75 billion a year.

However, the primary concern, he said, was the danger of a Vietnam- like situation arising out of our presence between the opposing forces of Israel and Egypt.

Burlison concluded: "I have heard a lot of talk over the past several years about the hard lessons we learned in Southeast Asia. Our vote last week marked the first opportunity to remember or forget these lessons. The recollections are still clear in my mind.

"We should not be overly concerned about what is the best interest of Israel. Neither should we unduly worry about what is best for Egypt. Our overrising consideration should be what is in the national security interest of the United States of America. The only proper response to that was a no vote on the resolution, and that's how I voted."

MU-Rolla technical graduates of May, '75 all find jobs

ROLLA, — In spite of the recession and a marked drop nationally in overall demand for new graduates, the University of Missouri- Rolla placed all of its May, 1975, technical graduates who wanted jobs.

Larry Nuss, director of placement, says that these graduates, about 93 per cent of the spring graduating class, started at salaries that exceeded the national average in every field. Nationally, engineering accounted for 54 per cent of all job offers and the national average starting salary for engineering graduates, $1109 per month, was the highest for all B.S. graduates.

Nuss believes that the energy crisis is the most important factor influencing hiring at this time.

"The impact of the energy crunch is felt in all fields, not just those that are energy-related. It affects the hiring of almost every type of engineer. For instance, oil companies interview in almost every engineering and science discipline, not just petroleum engineering or geology."

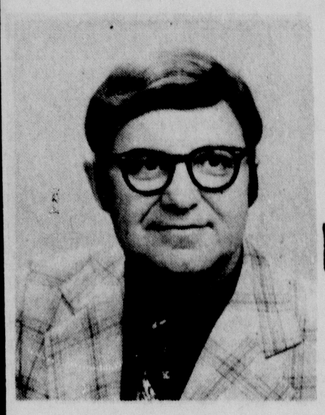

He says the graduates most sought after are those in fields most directly involved in solving energy problems. "This is shown in starting salary offers. The highest salaries were paid to graduates in petroleum engineering ($1,308 per month) and mining engineering ($1,297."

In the sciences, geology and geophysics graduates received the most attention from employers, chiefly oil companies. Demand also remained strong in other science fields.

According to Nuss, the overall market was excellent for UMR's technical graduates. "There were plenty of jobs available and at good salaries in all fields of engineering and science."

"Although the energy crisis has largely replaced the environmental crisis in public attention, there has been no let up in the demand for graduates in those fields," he adds. "Industry is becoming more conscious of environmental impact, and there is also an increase in the number of jobs in governmental agencies."

Nuss believes that the energy crisis is the most important factor influencing hiring at this time.

"The impact of the energy crunch is felt in all fields, not just those that are energy-related. It affects the hiring of almost every type of engineer. For instance, oil companies interview in almost every engineering and science discipline, not just petroleum engineering or geology."

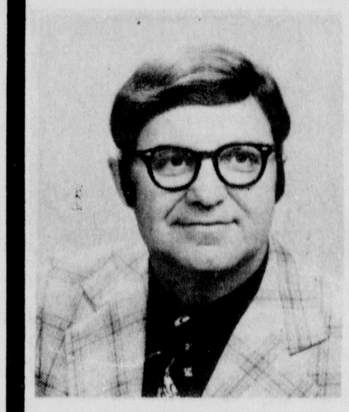

He says the graduates most sought after are those in fields most directly involved in solving energy problems. "This is shown in starting salary offers. The highest salaries were paid to graduates in petroleum engineering ($1,308 per month) and mining engineering ($1,297."

In the sciences, geology and geophysics graduates received the most attention from employers, chiefly oil companies. Demand also remained strong in other science fields.

According to Nuss, the overall market was excellent for UMR's technical graduates. "There were plenty of jobs available and at good salaries in all fields of engineering and science."

"Although the energy crisis has largely replaced the environmental crisis in public attention, there has been no let up in the demand for graduates in those fields," he adds. "Industry is becoming more conscious of environmental impact, and there is also an increase in the number of jobs in governmental agencies."

Baptist meeting slated at Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Approximately 1,500 delegates from throughout the state will converge upon Cape Girardeau Oct. 27-29 for the 141st annual meeting of the Missouri Baptist Convention.

Dr. W. T. Holland, pastor of the First Baptist Church, host church for the three-day meeting, said sessions will be held in Houck Field House.

In Missouri, there are presently nearly 600,000 members in 1,500 Baptist churches. The first Baptist church in Missouri, Old Bethel at Jackson, was established in 1808.

Dr. Holland said the meeting was last held here in 1969, noting that the city is a favorite convention site because of its numerous motel facilities.

The first convention session will be at 7 p.m. Oct. 27 in the field house. A conference for pastors will also be held that day in First Baptist Church.

Among the business taken up during the convention will be reports of all boards and institutions and approval of a convention budget for the forthcoming year.

This is the first full year that Dr. Rhubin South of Jefferson City has been executive director of the Missouri Baptist Convention, and Dr. Holland said there has been an upsurge of support for all convention activities.

Dr. and Mrs. South will attend the convention and will be honored at a reception Oct. 26 at First Baptist Church.

Parking during the convention is expected to be at a premium, Dr. Holland said. Centenary United Methodist Church has offered use of its parking lot for delegates, he said, and Police Chief Henry H. Gerecke has agreed to block Bellevue from the field house to Pacific for evening convention sessions so that delegates may park their cars in that area.

Methodists plan areawide event

MALDEN — United Methodist churches in the Bootheel area will hold a "Thanks-Giving" observance Nov. 2 at First United Methodist Church. The program, to be held from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m., was planned in response to the bishop's call for peace and self development.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mason, missionaries to Zaire, Africa, will be guest speakers. Films on work at various missions will be shown, and sharing gifts will be displayed in booths.

All families of the area churches are asked to sacrifice and share their wealth with the needy. Gifts of canned foods, garden and orchard produce, cooking utensils, dishes, furniture, blankets, clothing, diapers, layettes, health aids, school kits, etc., are needed. Gifts of livestock, including cattle and hogs, also are pledged.

Gifts and contributions collected at the local level will be sent to Columbia for a "Thanks-Giving" display to be held Nov. 29, after which representatives of the United Methodist churches will transport all livestock and other items directly to Africa.

United Methodists responded last year with $5 million in essential needs for foreign mission fields.

ON THE MOVE

Dear Mr. Swaim, I have had a number of problems in the recent past. My friends are all aware of these problems and, though they don't mean to be cruel, their constant mentioning of them is a source of pain to me. I think I'm going to try to just move away, get away from it all, and start again. Do you think this is advisable?

The Bible makes it clear that true peace and happiness are not dependent upon where we are living. You may search for peace in the country, in the mountains or by the sea and you will still be like a man the Bible speaks of: "He walketh through dry places, seeking rest and findeth none" [Matthew 12:43].

True happiness and peace depend upon an inward state of mind. If you do not have true happiness where you are, you may not be able to find it somewhere else. There is no way that I can make an absolute statement that it would be unwise for you to move, though it may be in your situation. I would, however, say that you should try to face your present situation and give it your best effort, allow enough time for those who know your past to forget the painful experiences you speak of, and recognize that everyone makes mistakes and that to get in the habit of running from these to one place and then another, will only compound your situation. Jesus told us the way to find peace when he said, "I am the door, by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved and shall go in and out and find pasture" [John 10:9]. If you have already turned your life over to Christ and have become a Christian and have lost the peace you had once, then what you need to try to do is re-center your attention on Jesus and return it to your first love. If you are not a Christian, then may I suggest establishing a relationship with him through firm belief, repentance, confession and baptism. Remember this verse: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee..." (Isaiah 26:3).

United Nations welcomes input by religious leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Amid the world's rough political weather, noted religious figures are converging here from around the globe to try to inject some unifying spiritual vision into international affairs.

The United Nations, strained by various conflicts and pressures, is welcoming the added input.

"Political leaders feel a kind of bankruptcy and despair and have become aware of the need for spiritual unity," says Pir Vilayat Inayat Khan, head of the Sufi order in the Western world. "That's why they're opening their doors to us."

Scholars and specialists of the major world faiths, Islam, Buddhism, Hinduism, Christianity and Judaism, are taking part in the affair Oct. 19-24, with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and diplomats joining in portions of it.

It is described as the first international religious meeting at the U.N. in its 30-year history, although Pope Paul VI addressed the U.N. in 1965.

"There is increasing recognition in secular and political life that we're floundering and drying up, that it's not sufficient to be grounded in merely humanistic documents," says Dr. Jean Houston, conference chairman.

Dr. Houston, president of the Foundation for Mind Research, Pomona, N.Y., adds, "We've gotten lost in ideologies, in particular groups and nationalisms, and now, in the crises of world affairs, there's a new realization that we're not going to solve problems from the outside.

"We need to renew our rootage in the deeper spiritual realities, in the image of oneness of humanity, and do it from within. We need to draw on the fundamental resources of the human race, on the taproots of existence."

The gathering, called "Summit V," the fifth inter-religious meetings sponsored in various parts of the world by the Temple of Understanding, an interfaith educational foundation, has the theme "One in the Human Spirit."

"What we try to do is to bring out the beauty, the validity and basic unity of all historic religions and the potentiality for doing good," says Saphira Barbara Lindin of Boston, director of the unusual mass.

Evangelists growing in number and image

NEW YORK (AP) — Most of the time, they're on the road. They go from town to town for a stand of a weekend to a few weeks, and then move on. They preach to big crowds and small, in tents, churches or auditoriums. They're traveling evangelists, a growing company in this country.

They're of many types, of varied methods, the objects both of praise and denunciation in the churches and out. But under influence of some of their abler professionals, their general image seems to have brightened, and their ranks increase.

The expanding number of them is "part of an evangelical renascence, of which direct mass evangelism is only one aspect," says the Rev. Dr. Robert Coleman, professor of evangelism at the Methodist Asbury Seminary in Wilmore, Ky.

Estimates indicate there now are about 2,000 roving evangelists in the field, of various denominations, although no inclusive data is maintained. Southern Baptists list the biggest number of them, 900 evangelists, both preachers and musicians, up 200 per cent in 10 years, of whom an estimated 500 are in the business full time.

Ordinarily the evangelists function independently, without direct institutional oversight or backing, although many of the educated "new breed" have incorporated boards overseeing administration of their activities. Others, including many old-timers, operate on their own, financially and in booking schedules.

They run the gamut from highly trained, theologically astute preachers such as Presbyterian Leighton Ford and black Baptist Tom Skinner, to little-educated "pulpit thumpers," with an eye on the collection plate.

They include showy spellbinders and also sensitive preachers, the high-paid and those who earn little. They depend mostly on the crowds they draw and number of conversions — their "track record" — for bookings by churches to conduct revivals.

"Critics looking for caricatures can always find enough of the 'Elmer Gantry' types to make a case," Dr. Coleman said in a telephone interview. "But they're certainly the exception. Any honest appraisal leads to a high respect for these people."

He said "anything worthwhile in this wold will have to endure its counterfeits. Some so-called 'evangelists' are an embarrassment to me. But they're not characteristic of the movement."

Church leader urges wariness

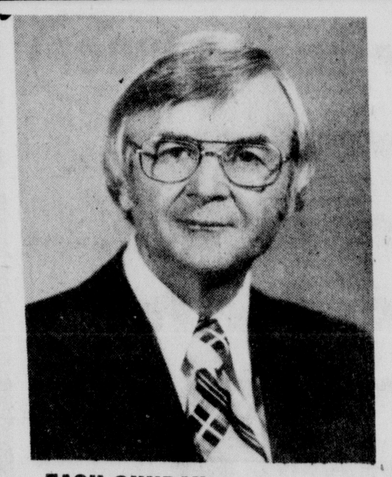

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The head of Americal's largest black church group has urged that this country be more wary of Russia and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency be freed to do their jobs.

The Rev. Joseph H. Jackson, who was elected Thursday to his second term as president of the 5.5 million-member National Baptist Convention, told a meeting of the group Thursday that the United States should stop selling wheat to the U.S.S.R.

"If they (the Russians) need bread," Jackson said, "then let's tell them to stop making so many bullets."

The church leader also cautioned against further public disclosures of wrongdoing by the FBI and the CIA, contending that the government should, instead, concentrate on weeding out the "guerrilla armies" poised to destroy America from within.

THE BIBLE
No. 209. Job's Friends Try To Comfort Him

It did not take long for news of Job's great tragedies to reach his friends. Three of his friends, upon learning of these disasters, left their homes and families to be with Job so that they might comfort and console him. These men were Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite.

As they came upon Job, they were shocked, for Job had changed so much in his sorrow that his three friends could scarcely recognize him. To demonstrate their sorrow, they rent their robes, wailed loudly in despair, and threw dust into the air and put earth on their heads.

"So they sat down with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights, and none spake a word unto him: for they saw that his grief was very great." (Job 2:13)

United Nations welcomes input by religious leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — Amid the world's rough political weather, noted religious figures are converging here from around the globe to try to inject some unifying spiritual vision into international affairs.

The United Nations, strained by various conflicts and pressures, is welcoming the added input.

"Political leaders feel a kind of bankruptcy and despair and have become aware of the need for spiritual unity," says Pir Vilayat Inayat Khan, head of the Sufi order in the Western world. "That's why they're opening their doors to us."

Scholars and specialists of the major world faiths, Islam, Buddhism, Hinduism, Christianity and Judaism, are taking part in the affair Oct. 19-24, with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and diplomats joining in portions of it.

It is described as the first international religious meeting at the U.N. in its 30-year history, although Pope Paul VI addressed the U.N. in 1965.

"There is increasing recognition in secular and political life that we're floundering and drying up, that it's not sufficient to be grounded in merely humanistic documents," says Dr. Jean Houston, conference chairman.

Dr. Houston, president of the Foundation for Mind Research, Pomona, N.Y., adds, "We've gotten lost in ideologies, in particular groups and nationalisms, and now, in the crises of world affairs, there's a new realization that we're not going to solve problems from the outside.

"We need to renew our rootage in the deeper spiritual realities, in the image of oneness of humanity, and do it from within. We need to draw on the fundamental resources of the human race, on the taproots of existence."

The gathering, called "Summit V," the fifth inter-religious meetings sponsored in various parts of the world by the Temple of Understanding, an interfaith educational foundation, has the theme "One in the Human Spirit."

"What we try to do is to bring out the beauty, the validity and basic unity of all historic religions and the potentiality for doing good," says Saphira Barbara Lindin of Boston, director of the unusual mass.

Evangelists growing in number and image

NEW YORK (AP) — Most of the time, they're on the road. They go from town to town for a stand of a weekend to a few weeks, and then move on. They preach to big crowds and small, in tents, churches or auditoriums. They're traveling evangelists, a growing company in this country.

They're of many types, of varied methods, the objects both of praise and denunciation in the churches and out. But under influence of some of their abler professionals, their general image seems to have brightened, and their ranks increase.

The expanding number of them is "part of an evangelical renascence, of which direct mass evangelism is only one aspect," says the Rev. Dr. Robert Coleman, professor of evangelism at the Methodist Asbury Seminary in Wilmore, Ky.

Estimates indicate there now are about 2,000 roving evangelists in the field, of various denominations, although no inclusive data is maintained. Southern Baptists list the biggest number of them, 900 evangelists, both preachers and musicians, up 200 per cent in 10 years, of whom an estimated 500 are in the business full time.

Ordinarily the evangelists function independently, without direct institutional oversight or backing, although many of the educated "new breed" have incorporated boards overseeing administration of their activities. Others, including many old-timers, operate on their own, financially and in booking schedules.

They run the gamut from highly trained, theologically astute preachers such as Presbyterian Leighton Ford and black Baptist Tom Skinner, to little-educated "pulpit thumpers," with an eye on the collection plate.

They include showy spellbinders and also sensitive preachers, the high-paid and those who earn little. They depend mostly on the crowds they draw and number of conversions — their "track record" — for bookings by churches to conduct revivals.

"Critics looking for caricatures can always find enough of the 'Elmer Gantry' types to make a case," Dr. Coleman said in a telephone interview. "But they're certainly the exception. Any honest appraisal leads to a high respect for these people."

He said "anything worthwhile in this wold will have to endure its counterfeits. Some so-called 'evangelists' are an embarrassment to me. But they're not characteristic of the movement."

Church leader urges wariness

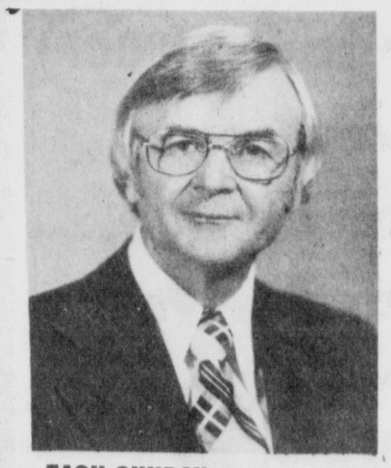

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The head of Americal's largest black church group has urged that this country be more wary of Russia and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency be freed to do their jobs.

The Rev. Joseph H. Jackson, who was elected Thursday to his second term as president of the 5.5 million-member National Baptist Convention, told a meeting of the group Thursday that the United States should stop selling wheat to the U.S.S.R.

"If they (the Russians) need bread," Jackson said, "then let's tell them to stop making so many bullets."

The church leader also cautioned against further public disclosures of wrongdoing by the FBI and the CIA, contending that the government should, instead, concentrate on weeding out the "guerrilla armies" poised to destroy America from within.

THE BIBLE
No. 209. Job's Friends Try To Comfort Him

It did not take long for news of Job's great tragedies to reach his friends. Three of his friends, upon learning of these disasters, left their homes and families to be with Job so that they might comfort and console him. These men were Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite.

As they came upon Job, they were shocked, for Job had changed so much in his sorrow that his three friends could scarcely recognize him. To demonstrate their sorrow, they rent their robes, wailed loudly in despair, and threw dust into the air and put earth on their heads.

"So they sat down with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights, and none spake a word unto him: for they saw that his grief was very great." (Job 2:13)

Richland schools plan open house Sunday

ESSEX — The Richland Parent-Teachers Association, in cooperation with the Community Teachers Association, will hold an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at each school in the district, PTA president Sue Swinger has announced.

All the teaching staff will be in their regular classrooms to meet the parents, with the following exceptions: Verlon Cowan will be at the Gray Ridge elementary building; Emma Hall, Ellen Persfull, Nora Fuchs and Shirley Kelso will be at the Essex Elementary School; Janice McCane will be at the music building near the Essex Elementary School; and Kaye Gregory and James Carman will be at the high school.

Boy Scouts will serve as guides in all the buildings, and refreshments will be served at each school.

Not too high

Avoid unnecessarily high thermostat settings on your water heater to prevent wasted energy. Check it, to make sure it really fits your needs.

American Republic will provide benefits of from $7.50 to $60 a day beginning the first day you are hospitalized for covered sickness or injury...

...and the policy is guaranteed renewable for life.

Since the average stay in the hospital for people under sixty-five is about seven days,* it is important that you buy a hospital policy that starts paying the first day you are hospitalized for covered sickness or accident. The Americare® Family Hospitalization Compensation Policy is basic first day coverage which can be valuable to any other supplemental policy you might own that only offers protection after the third, fifth or even after the seventh day of hospital confinement.

Why you may need Americare in addition to other hospitalization insurance you may have.

According to the American Hospital Association the average cost per patient day in the hospital reached $114.56 in January of 1974. In fact, this cost has increased over 100% in ten short years.

You probably have group insurance or a policy purchased from your agent. Keep it. You need it.

A hospital stay of only a few days can deplete your savings and leave you in debt. Your Americare protection can help you meet your hospital-stay related expenses and supplement the coverage of your present insurance.

Yours for a lifetime.

You will be covered as long as you live and continue to pay your current premium on time. Your policy cannot be cancelled nor will we fail to renew it because of health reasons, regardless of the number of claims.

Benefits are provided direct to you, or you may assign them to your doctor or hospital.

This policy (Form A1881) provides benefits in addition to any other insurance you may have up to 365 days.

EXCEPTIONS:

This policy does not cover any hospitalization for accidents sustained before your policy is issued, or any sickness that first manifests itself before the policy has been in force for 30 days. Nor does it cover hospital care due to war, mental disorder, maternity, or dental work. Or when you are in a U.S. Government or Veterans Hospital (not applicable in Colorado, Missouri or Minnesota).

Your individual rate can never be changed unless the rate is changed for all policyholders in your class, or of your age at the time your policy was issued, or of your sex.

Act Now!

Don't gamble with your future. According to the latest published figures, one person in seven will go to the hospital this year. Right now, while it is fresh in your mind—please fill in the postage-paid reply card below and mail it today. You will receive the FREE gift shown and complete information on how you can apply for this Americare Hospitalization Compensation Policy.
